FALL SENTENCED TO YEAR IN JAIL

BOOTLEG LOANS MAY BE DISCONTINUED; REPORT SHRINKAGE

Corporation Loans To Brokers Have Grown Rapidly

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A shrinkage of $1,380,000,000 in bootleg loans, as rpeorted by the federal reserve board in its weekly brokers' loan statement this week, raises the question as to the probable discontinuance of corporation loans to stock brokers, whether directly or through the medium of the New York City banks.

The term bootleg, as applied to loans on stocks and bonds, was coined to denote the loaning of money to carry stocks in the brokers accounts, by any person or corporation, outside of the regular banking channels. The system was built up chiefly through the high interest rates offered in the call loan market for idle funds of corporations, investment trusts and even wealthy individuals, and a 10 and 15 per cent rate eventually attracted money from over the ocean and Canada.

The bankers plainly were opposed to handling money in this way. They preferred straight deposits in the banks, as heretofore, the funds thus placed to be put out on call, as required, at rates determined by the law of supply and demand. By the end of September of this year, however, bootleg call money loaning had grown so rapidly that nearly 55 per cent of the total of "loans against stocks and bonds," as reported by the reserve board, came through this channel.

A return to normal interest rates in the call loan market, and heavy liquidation of public holdings of speculative stocks, with deflation of ballooned stock prices, will eventually show the door to bootleg loans. This is the prevailing view in Wall Street today.

This week's report shows that the New York banks increased their call loans $992,000,000, at the same time withdrawing for the out-of-town banks a total of $707,000,000 from the speculative money market. The net result is a decrease of $1,096,000,000 in the aggregate of brokers' loans for the week, an unprecedented shrinkage and a measure of the violent downward sweep of security prices on the stock exchange.

Brokers' loans down a billion dollars in a week. This is a staggering performance and almost challenges the accuracy of the figures submitted by the reserve board statisticians. What if security prices in the aggregate did shrink five or six billion dollars in this period? Thousands of shares of stocks were untouched by buyers and sellers. They were held tightly by investors and speculators who refused to be stampeded into selling. Many of these speculators deposited new margins by the millions of dollars, accounts were strengthened and others "taken over" by the banks.

The billion and a quarter dollars withdrawn by the corporations and investment trusts will now be put to work in other channels, investments trusts will buy stocks—have already bought them; corporations can use the money to good advantage in current operations. Now that the cream is off the call loan high-interest market, industrial companies will be satisfied to deposit their money in the banks at 2 or 3 per cent, leaving the banks to make a modest profit in call loans, or as advances to bond syndicates.

Bootleg loans today total 2,443 million dollars, against 3,823 millions a week ago, probabilities are the volume will decline over the year-end, particularly if interest rates fall.

ASSIGN JUDGE TO TRY ARNOLD CASE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Common Pleas Judge Charles Turnbaugh, of Cambridge, will preside at the second trial of Elias and Arthur Arnold, 63-year-old father and 17-year-old son—for the kidnaping of Melvin Horst, 4, it was announced today by Chief Justice C. T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme Court. The new trial is to be held at Wooster, starting December 2.

The two Arnolds after being convicted of "child-stealing", were imprisoned. Later, however, they were liberated on bond pending a decision on their appeal.

The Supreme Court recently upheld the decree of the Wayne County appelate court granting the Arnolds a new trial.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE ALOFT DURING TEST

CARDINGTON, Eng., Nov. 1.—Carrying several passengers and its usual crew, Great Britain's great dirigible, the R-101, soared aloft today on an eight hour test flight in which tests of its speed were to be made.

In its previous flights, no attempt was made to push the huge craft to its top speed.

BINGHAM MAY OFFER APOLOGY TO DODGE CENSURE OF SENATE

Will Face Reprimand As Alternative In Lobby Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—An apology or a reprimand.

This alternative faced Senator Hiram Bingham (R) of Conn., in the senate today as the outgrowth of his employment of a paid lobbyist to aid in drafting the new tariff bill.

Hoping to avert direct censure from the senate, Bingham's friends were urging him to make an apology for the employment of Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut Manufacturers Association, and for having charged that the senate lobby investigating committee was "framed" against him. There were numerous indications that Bingham would make the desired apology, thus avoiding punishment from the senate.

Leaders of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition were ready to support the resolution of censure that Senator Norris (R) of Nebr., has drafted. This resolution would condemn Bingham's use of Eyanson in no uncertain terms, and assert that it reflect against the honor and dignity of the senate. Norris was ready to abandon the resolution if Bingham made the "mande honorable" to the senate.

The Connecticut senator meanwhile faced fresh troubles in the serious charges of Thomas L. Hill, president of the American Society for the Promotion of Aviation, that Bingham was the "mouthpiece" of a "gigantic air trust and super lobby."

Hill gave the lobby committee a list of witnesses, who, he said, would prove his charges that the "super air lobby" had grabbed all government aircraft contracts and was seeking $100,000,000 more. He charged the lobby was costing the lives of "countless" fliers.

The lobby committee took these new charges under advisement.

The Eyanson case however was immediately pending, with Norris ready to introduce the censure resolution if Bingham failed to apologize.

One of Bingham's friends explained his attitude to International News Service.

"Senator Bingham was conscious of no wrong doing," said this friend. "He committed no dishonest act. He intended solely to help his constitutents and the ailing industries of the East, which are the backbone of the country's prosperity. He saw the plight of various industries in his state and New England and he wated expert advise on how to properly secure relief for them.

"He thought he was doing a perfectly proper, act. He was doing what he conceived to be his senatorial duty and if the senate believes he did wrong, he is willing to admit his error—a political error and not one of his conscience."

Admits Bank Theft

After disappearing for a week, John R. Thornburn, president of an Urbana, Ill., banking company, has returned and admitted to embezzling $100,000 of the school funds entrusted to the institution, according to authorities to whom he surrendered. The bank had closed following his disappearance.

THOUSANDS FROLIC THURSDAY NIGHT AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Bad Weather Fails To Dampen Arder Of Revelers

Threatening weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of several thousand people who either participated or watched the Hallowee'n frolic sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchant's Association Thursday night.

Despite a drizzling rain several hundred masqueraders in all kinds of costumes marched in the parade that was the outstanding feature of the community celebration. The parade extended for three blocks and was augmented by the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band and a combination band representing the Bath Twp. High School and Osborn town musical organizations.

Music was not lacking and neither was merry-making. The procession disbanded at the Court House square after passing in review several times before the judges' stand on the south side of the Court House.

E. Main St. between Detroit and Whiteman Sts., was roped off and a detail of police kept vehicular traffic out of this reserved section which was devoted to the celebrators.

Following the parade a number of contests were held in which fifty cash and merchandise prizes valued at $200, donated by Xenia business men, were awarded. The contests included pie eating, doughnut eating, apple eating and a hog calling contest which had three entrants. Buck and wing and other specialty dancing was also featured on the platform erected for the occasion.

Isadore M. Hyman acted as master of ceremonies for the contests, all of which had a large number of entries. Prizes were also awarded for many different kinds of costumes.

It is estimated that several thousand people congregated about the platform in merry groups and a holiday mood dominated the occasion.

LAUNCH FIGHT ON TAX EVASION RUSE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1. — A statewide war against a ruse whereby some farmers allegedly escape payment of the state gasoline tax is to be waged by the Ohio Tax Commission.

Under the Buckeye state laws, the farmers can demand a rebate on their gasoline tax on the fuel they use in their tractors and other farm implements, excluding the automobile.

The tax commission alleges that some of the farmers say they are using the gasoline for their tractors, when, in reality, they are using it in their automobiles.

The fight against this practice was started today.

A Lorain County farmer was cited to appear before the tax commission to explain his demand for a rebate of $24 on 700 gallons of gasoline. Members of the commission would not disclose the name of the alleged "tax-dodger," pointing out that the offense was a minor one.

They issued a warning, however, that prosecutions will be started if the practice is not stopped.

NOVA SCOTIA VOTES WET; PROHIBITION LAW IS ABANDONED

Distribute Liquor After Thirteen Years Dry

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 1.—After thirteen years of prohibition the voters of Nova Scotia today were on record as favoring the lifting of the ban on liquor and allowing its distribution and sale through government agencies.

Latest returns indicated that the wets had rolled up a huge majority which may reach 30,000 in the plebescite taken on the question. Returns from outlying districts are still missing, but these are not sufficiently numerous to alter the result.

In the last plebescite on the question, taken ten years ago, the drys hung up a majority of some 55,000 votes. Since then, however, there has been much agitation for the return of liquor. Ontario's overwhelming indorsement of government controlled liquor sales and a desire to escape from evils of bootlegging also were regarded as major factors in turning the tide from dry to wet.

In all the larger cities, the vote against prohibition was something like five to one. Amusingly belying its name, Sober Island indicated the trend of the voting in the early returns by recording a vote of 214 to 6 against prohibition.

With Nova Scotia again in the ranks of the wet provinces, only Prince Edward Island, of all the Dominion of Canada, remains dry.

U. S. Consul Arrives in Rome

Leon Dominan, United States Consul at Rome, Italy, arrives with his wife on the liner De Grasse for a two-month leave of absence, which he will spend in the United States.

FIVE OHIOANS SUGGESTED AS SENATOR BURTON'S SUCCESSOR

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—Names of five Ohioans were circulated freely in state political circles today as possibilities to succeed the late Senator Theodore E. Burton to his unexpired term in the United States senate.

They are: Postmaster General Walter F. Brown of Toledo, who is rumored as President Hoover's choice; Col. Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, who stepped out of the senatorial race in 1928 in favor of Senator Burton; Roscoe C. McCulloch of Canton, chairman of the state utilities commission; E. W. Edwards of Cincinnati, banker and friend of the governor, and William H. Boyd, Cleveland attorney.

Reports that Governor Cooper was considering himself a possibility for the post—that he would resign, turning the governorship oved to Lieut. Gov. John Brown, and step into the senatorial post himself—were definitely "spiked" by the state executive as he entrained here early today for Columbus. He admitted, however, that he had received proposals to that effect.

"I was elected to be governor by the people of this state, and I propose to keep that contract," Gov. Cooper said.

When asked if he had received any word from President Hoover regarding Senator Burton's successor, the governor said: "I think all the president wants is a man favorable to the national administration."

At a conference held here last night between Gov. Cooper, Postmaster General Brown, State Finance Director Harry D. Silver and Joseph R. Nutt, national Republican treasurer, it was believed the selection was partially settled. Gov. Cooper told reporters early today he would definitely make up his mind within the next twenty-four hours and announce his decision within three days.

WALL STREET WORKS DURING HOLIDAY TO CLEAN UP BUSINESS

Tension Lifted; Market Regains Stability

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Wall Street was taking stock and "mopping up" today after the most turbulent curtailed business week in its history.

The New York Stock Exchange was closed, and so was the Curb Exchange, and they will remain closed until Monday. Yet there was plenty to do, and the man power of the financial district was engaged in putting in "a full day." This, in itself, was a relief from working "around the clock."

While the tickers were silent, brokers and their employes were busy straightening out accumulated business. They were hard at it in posting books, delivering stocks, adjusting complaints of customers and making out reports. All officers of member firms of both exchanges were open.

The financial giants of "the street" seemed much relieved. The tension was lifted. The stock market has regained its poise and stability, in the opinion of leading bankers. They are looking forward to a cessation of the "wild" markets. They see normalcy just ahead.

Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan and Company, in an informal statement last night, declared there had been no conference of the "big six" banking group yesterday in regard to the market situation and he did not look for any over the week-end.

The general view of leading bankers is that the "crisis" has passed.

FORD CUTS PRICES FROM $15 TO $200

DETROIT, Nov. 1.—The Ford Motor Company announced a price cut on all its models today.

The reduction ranges from $15 on the roadster to $200 on the town car or limousine. This brings the price of the roadster to $435 F. O. B. Detroit and the town car, the most expensive in the line, down to $1,200.

Edsel B. Ford, president of the company, in announcing the cut, said "We are reducing prices now because we feel that such a step is the best contribution that can be made to assure a continuation of good business throughout the country. Our dealers are assisting by accepting reductions in their discounts."

The company's cash balance is said to have shown a steady increase and production has been maintained steadily in the past month at the rate of 7,300 cars per day. In announcing the cut the Ford Company is reported to have wired a full page advertisement to every daily newspaper in the United States.

REBEL CHINESE THREATEN CANTON

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The rebel Chinese are threatening Canton again, according to a Hong Kong dispatch published in The Times today.

The rebel general Chang Fat Kwai is reported to have entered the state of Kwangsi and is said to be threatening Canton from the northwest. The Nationalists have concentrated three divisions to combat the rebel drive.

Residents of Canton are reported almost hysterically fearful of a possible bombardment of the city.

DROWNS IN BATHTUB

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 1.—Falling asleep in the tub, William Linger, 36, dredgeman, of Sandusky, was drowned while taking a bath in a hotel room here last night. Coroner A. R. Grierson returned a verdict of death by accidental drowning today.

SEVEN DROWNED WHEN LAKE SHIPS COLLIDE

Search For Missing Bodies; Blame Fog For Tragedy

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis., Nov. 1.—Search was begun today for missing bodies and possible survivors lost following a collision between two lake steamships which rolled the S. S. Senator over on its side and plunged its captain and six others to their deaths in Lake Michigan's chill waters yesterday.

The ore freighter Marquette crawled into Milwaukee's harbor last night, a gaping hole smashed in its bow.

Surrounded by a dense blanket of fog, the Senator and Marquette collided. The Senator plunged to the bottom within ten minutes, leaving twenty-eight members of the crew struggling in the water.

The radio of the Marquette, flashing out an S. O. S. after the crash, gave the alarming report that it had lost track of the Senator's wreckage and feared the entire crew was lost. Shipping tons of water through the gash torn in its prow, the Marquette lowered boats and picked up three men.

Sixteen men were picked out of the water by the tug Delos Smith. Others were snatched from the water by smaller craft.

SENATE SPLIT OVER HOOVER DEMAND FOR TARIFF ENACTMENT

Propose Limitation Of Debate To Help Reach Solution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Limitation of debate on the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was proposed today as a battered and factionally split senate rankled under the sting of President Hoover's implied criticism of tariff delay.

Despite the reluctance of the senate to change its time-honored rule of unrestricted debate, even for a brief period, the proposal was being seriously considered both by progressive Republicans and others often labelled members of the president's official family.

Debate restriction was suggested as an alternative to the plan of Sen. Wesley L. Jones of Washington, acting Republican leader in the absence of Sen. Watson (R) of Indiana, to turn the task of writing the tariff bill over to the Democratic-Progressive Republican coalition.

Refusal of some of the "Old Guard" members to have anything to do with the Jones proposal was believed to doom it, despite the high hopes of the Republican leader for compliance with Mr. Hoover's request to speed passage of the bill in two weeks' time.

Sen. Borah (R) of Idaho, a coalition leader and an advocate of liberal senate rules, first suggested, limitation of a general agreement which would permit some discussion upon every item in the bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Not in many years of bloc battling, alliance making, and factional coalescing in congress has Washington witnessed such a strange political mix-up as existed in the senate today over President Hoover's demand that the tariff bill be enacted within two weeks.

The regular Republicans are split the Democrats are split, the Republican insurgents are split, and the coalition of Democrats and Insurgent Republicans, which has demonstrated its ability to control at every step in this tariff-making, has been rent asunder by Mr. Hoover's sudden intervention in the tariff war.

Such Republican high-protection stalwarts as Senators Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Smoot (R) of Utah, are at odds on whether the tariff bill should be abandoned as an incorrigible child, or an attempt made to nurse it to enactment under conditions wholly unacceptable to the industrial east.

Such consistent dissenters as Senators Borah (R) of Idaho, Johnson (R) of California, and Norris (R) of Nebraska, differ on Mr. Hoover's demand, the Idahoan insisting that it can be met, and the Californian professing to disbelieve that the president could have made such an "incredible" request.

The tariff Democrats like Walsh of Massachusetts, Ransdell and Broussard of Louisiana, and Fletcher of Florida, are at variance with the majority of their Democratic colleagues.

COLD WAVE COMING

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Ohio is in for a mild cold snap, weather observers said here today. Temperatures will drop about 20 degrees and hover around the 40 mark. The cold weather will continue over the week end.

THIRD LEADER WILL ATTEMPT TO CREATE CABINET IN FRANCE

Briand Takes Post Of Foreign Minister Under Tardieu

PARIS, Nov. 1.—"I hope to announce my cabinet list tomorrow and convoke parliament next Thursday," M. Tardieu, the latest French political leader to attempt to form a new government stated today after a conference with President Doumergue.

Thus he expressed his certainty that he would succeed where two others, M. Daladier and M. Clementel, had failed.

"M. Briand has accepted the post of foreign minister in the new cabinet and is collaborating with me," he added.

Political observers, while inclined to be non-commital in view of the happenings of the past eleven days, were hopeful Tardieu had found the key to a situation which has left France without a government during that time.

M. Tardieu's attempt differs from that of his two predecessors in that, if successful, it will in all probability result in the formation of a cabinet having distinctly nationalistic tendencies.

M. Daladier tried to form a government which would have been distinctly left, or radical, in complexion. M. Clementel attempted to form a seemingly moderate cabinet with left leanings.

M. Tardieu is expected to veer away over to the right for a cabinet which should turn out to be as conservative as would be possible without inciting so much left and center opposition as to make its inception impossible.

Out of the muddle of the whole crucial political situation there appears to be one figure who, apparently, has to be appeased by all would-be government leaders.

He is former Premier Briand, who was deposed eleven days ago when the chamber of deputies failed to give him a vote of confidence.

MAC DONALDS GIVEN POPULAR OVATION

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, bearing important diplomatic achievements garnered on his visit to President Hoover and the United States, returned to London this afternoon in the role of a popular if not a conquering hero.

Huge crowds lined the route of his journey from Euston station to his official residence at 10 Downing Street, and they accorded the prime minister and his daughter, Ishbel, a popular welcome such as is seldom witnessed in this staid old town. So noisy was the reception that it was termed by some as a "welcome a la New York."

Mr. MacDonald appeared very well, but complained some of neuritis, which he said affected his right arm.

PAY LAST RESPECTS TO SENATOR BURTON

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—With the body of Ohio's late Senator Theodore E. Burton entrusted to Cleveland for always today, senators and officials from Washington who attended the statesman's funeral here yesterday, were returning to their official duties.

The remains of the veteran Ohio representative were laid to rest in Lake View cemetery late yesterday after thousands of Clevelanders, Ohioans, and dignitaries from over the nation had paid their last respects to Senator Burton's memory.

NO DEPRESSION COMING

Spending Habit Of America Helps Point To Plenty Of Business

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — American's insatiable appetite for luxuries and unrestrainable propensity for spending money was held out today as a nearly certain guarantee against a serious business depression, feared in some quarters as a result of the $15,000,000,000 stock market crash.

Because Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are real spenders and want several changes of raiment, different type and colored shoes, new automobiles every two or three years, the latest radios and other necessities and luxuries innumerable, trade should be kept booming, in the opinion of treasury and commerce officials.

This spending habit, which grew out of war coupled with the rapid market recovery-drops in the London and New York rediscount rates, releasing of more than a million dollars from the New York Stock market through reduced brokers loans, and the assurance of a high treasury executive that easy money is here—all pointed to business and plenty of it for the winter season.

In fact the treasury predicted a Christmas buying jamboree not incomparable with the record trade of 1927 and 1928 holidays, despite the huge losses sustained by the general public in the market debacle.

FORMER SECRETARY OF INTERIOR FINED $100,000 BY JUDGE

Prison Term May Never Be Served; Will Stand In Records

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, was sentenced today to a year in prison and fined $100,000 for accepting from E. L. Doheny another $100,000 after he had leased the California oil baron the Elk Hills naval reserve. The jury that tried the ex-cabinet officer said it was a bribe.

The prison sentence however was somewhat of the sympathetic variety, Justice William Hitz announcing from the bench that if Fall were compelled to go to prison at this time he would have suspended that part of it.

For the purposes of the record Judge Hitz specified that the District of Columbia jail would be the place of confinement. This is the prison where Harry Sinclair is now completing nine months for contempt of court, his sentence growing out of his oil dealings with Fall. Had there been an additional day tacked on the sentence meted out to Fall the place of confinement would have been the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

The sentence given Fall was generally approved on Capitol Hill where the oil cases originated. Senators showed a reluctance to comment but there appeared to be considerable satisfaction that Fall had been given a jail sentence instead of just a fine. Inasmuch as Fall's attorneys are planning to appeal the sentence to the supreme court and in view of Fall's pitiable physical condition, the court decided to tack on the prison sentence, even though it probably never will be served. It will stand in the record against him for all time, the first prison sentence ever pronounced on a cabinet officer of the United States for the commission of a felony.

The fine was only one third of the amount which the court could have imposed upon the aged defendant. The law specified that the fine could have been three times the amount of the bribe or $300,000 but the court only assessed the amount of the bribe, $100,000. Fall did not show any sign of emotion when the sentence was passed. A sister, Mrs. Jauett Elliott, who was in court, bowed her head and wept softly. Mrs. Fall took the sentence as did her husband.

IDENTIFY IONE ORD BUT SHE THREATENS SUICIDE IN PRISON

Under Close Guard To Prevent Woman Ending Life

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 1.—A sheriff's guard was to stand watch at the jail cell of Gloria Ouzer today as "Ione Ord" of the Jack Kraft murder mystery threatened to commit suicide rather than face her mother in her prison quarters.

"I will not see her in a prison cell," the girl declared. "My mother will not find me alive in a jail."

Sheriff Ernest Alberti, of Plaquemine Parish, custodian of the girl artist held as a material witness in the killing of the New York pressman, indicated he accepted the declaration as a serious threat of suicide and promised a guard would be posted.

Miss Ouzer steadfastly maintained that her name was Ione Ord until she was identified by acquaintances. She was traveling on the steamship Creole with Kraft when he was killed and his body tossed overboard into the Mississippi River. Her story of the events surrounding the killing led to a grand jury indictment of John McGouldrick, second mate of the ship.

The girl admitted she had been married to an Englishman whom she met in France some years ago. She said the French divorce courts had granted her a divorce decree.

Attorneys for Sam Epstein, steward of the ship held as a material witness, have obtained a court order fixing Monday as the time for taking Epstein's testimony in the court at Ponte a La Hache.

This will be taken in the presence of McGouldrick, and Epstein likely will be submitted to direct questioning with attorneys representing all principals participating.

TAILORING AND SHOE SHOPS ABOLISHED AT HOME BY NEW ORDER

Trades Dropped By Order; Will Buy Uniforms, Shoes

THE tailoring and shoe shops at the O. S. and S. O. Home are to be abolished by Col. C. V. Burton, superintendent, under an order made following a conference Wednesday with Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, who is said to have approved of the decision. The order takes effect November 15.

The only employe affected by the order is Charles Breiel, who has been employed as shoemaker foreman at the home for many years. The death of Charles P. March last October 23 created a vacancy in the tailor shop over which March had presided as foreman for eighteen years.

Both shops have for many years been engaged in making shoes and clothing for the Home children, including uniforms for the boys.

Elimination of the two shops had been recommended by Superintendent Burton to the board of trustees last May in connection with plans for re-organizing the trades at the institution, it being his desire to provide more satisfactory training for the boys instead of employing them in the tailor and shoe shops.

The shoe repair department, however, will be continued, giving the boys an opportunity for training in this vocation. The older girls will also still have training in sewing under a domestic science teacher and will make most of their own clothing as well as garments for some of the younger children.

Supt. Burton declared that hereafter uniforms and footwear for the boys will be purchased and that the boys have already been outfitted for the winter with shoes bought from the Excelsior Shoe Co., Portsmouth, O. The girls also have enough shoes for the present along with the galoshes obtained for them last winter, it is announced.

One of the first steps in the reorganization of trades at the home was taken recently with the employment of J. E. Balmer, Sidney as supervisor of trades, in charge of all vocations. The educational department is being revised under the supervision of Director Clifton.

AUTOIST BURNED AS CAR CATCHES FIRE; TRUCK DESTROYED

Attempting to smother the flames with a coat when his Durant touring car caught fire from a short circuit in the wiring, Leroy Breakall, 228 Bellbrook Ave., was painfully burned on one hand early Thursday night. The auto was parked in front of The Chicken House, W. Second St. Breakall was successful in extinguishing the blaze before the arrival of firemen.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks VapoRub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing".

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popularity of Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standby for all colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.

$3. The alarm was turned in at 7:14 p. m.

A semi-trailer truck loaded with about eighty acetylene tanks and valued at $4,000, was practically destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock Friday morning on the Cincinnati Pike, three miles south of Xenia, according to Sheriff Ohmer Tate, who made an investigation. The truck, owned by a Columbus firm, was being driven from Columbus to Cincinnati when it caught fire. The driver, whose name was not learned, was not hurt.

Becoming frightened when a box underneath a hot plate was ignited, a colored maid at the First U. P. Church parsonage, 215 E. Church St., turned in an alarm at 2:35 p. m. Thursday. Firemen put out the blaze with a chemical. There was no damage. The parsonage is occupied by the Rev. J. P. Lytle and family.

XENIA TOWNSHIP
SCHOOL BOARD APPEAL

The Xenia Township Citizens' School Committee presents to the voters of the Xenia Township School District as Candidates for Board of Education, to be voted on at next Tuesday's election: Frank Weaver, Harry Hagler and James B. Harner, for the vital interest they manifest in the cause of Education.

In deciding on candidates for your approval, it was considered of prime importance that the fundamental policy of the citizens of the Xenia Township School District, to keep politics out of our schools, should be strongly upheld. These candidates will consider the problems of the Board from the view-point of the entire township regardless of Race or Creed.

Two of these men have already demonstrated their fitness on the board; one of these two having recently become a member on the recommendation of the citizens to the board; and all three are successful in their private affairs.

We admire the statement of the Board some months ago that: "The Books of the Board are open to inspection by the Public and Tax-Payers any Time, and will always be kept so, while this Board is in power."

The Xenia Township Citizens School Committee.

VOTERS

A vote for Frank Weaver, Harry Hagler and James B. Harner for members of the Xenia Township Board of Education, at next Tuesday's election will help maintain the Standards of Morale of the Xenia Township Schools.

ELEAZER CHURCH HOLDS MASQUERADE

Sixty members and friends of Eleazer Church, south of Xenia, enjoyed a Hallowe'en masquerade social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jones, near Cedarville, Taursday evening. Prizes were given to Mrs. Fred Fugate for having the prettiest costume and Mrs. Laura Earley for the most grotesque. Jean Mason was presented a prize for the best costumed child.

Games and stunts were enjoyed, one of the features of the evening being a will-writing contest. Each person had to bequeath his five most cherished possessions to someone and much merriment followed when the wills were read. A fortune-telling booth also was an enjoyable feature.

Supper was served cafeteria style late in the evening, with Hallowe'en appointments and decorations being used. Mrs. Emery Oglesbee and Mrs. Floyd Weaver were in charge of the social.

The November social meeting will be held at the church with Mrs. Cherles Lewis and Mrs. Oakley Edgington, the committee in charge.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE WELL ATTENDED

Approximately forty couples attended the Hallowe'en dance at Mauck Hall, Jamestown, Thursday night. Max Jenks and his orchestra furnished music for the dance.

This is the first of a series of dances to be given at the hall. There will be an invitation dance at the hall every Friday evening.

The orchestra is composed of Miss Leontine Jenks, Messrs. Herbert Wheeler, Philip Campbell, Howard Luck, Brooks Reeder and the leader.

WILL GIVE SUPPER

Members of White Chapel M. E. Church are sponsoring a fried chicken supper at the church Friday eevning November 8 at 6:30 o'clock, to which the public is invited.

The basement of the church has been recently remodeled and the funds received from the supper will be used to buy new kitchen equipment. Those wishing to attend the supper are asked to call in their reservations early.

COLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Penewit, Spring Valley, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday evening, when a group of relatives and friends gathered at their home and enjoyed an oyster supper

Following the supper the evening was spent in reminiscences, music and congratulations.

The house was beautifully decorated with fall flowers and a large golden wedding bell. A large wedding cake was the center piece at the table.

Mrs. Penewit, a well known music teacher, who taught music for many years in three adjoining counties, played the same music on her fiftieth anniversary that she played on her wedding day.

Mr. Penewit's sister, Mrs. Laura Hurley, who baked the wedding cake for her brother's wedding day, baked the cake for his fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Penewit received many useful and dainty gifts.

JOINT HOSTESSES AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The Misses Mildred Compton and Mildred Jordan, entertained at a delightful Hallowe'en party at the home of the latter on Fayette St., Wednesday evening. The guests arrived masked and Miss Aletha Devoe was awarded a prize for being the best dressed, and Miss Thelma Keiter for having the most comical costume.

Games and contests were enjoyed by the guests, prizes being awarded Miss Alberta Murray and Miss Donna Devoe. Late in the evening a refreshment course was served by the hostesses, the color scheme and appointments being suggestive of the Hallowe'en season. Each guest was presented a dainty favor.

Those who attended the party were the Misses Aletha Devoe, Alberta Murray, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Donna Devoe, Pauline Springer, Juanita McPherson, Thelma Keiter, Laura Mae Hansell and the hostesses.

ENTERTAINS WITH HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Master Harris and Gerald Lane, Cincinnati Pike, entertained a group of their friends with a Hallowee'n party, Tuesday evening.

The evening was spent in games and music after which a refreshment course was served.

Mr. Leon Trader, N. Detroit St. has accepted a position as salesman for the Bryant Motor Sales, E. Market St.

Mr. Donald Devoe, south of Xenia, student at Miami-Jacobs Business College, Dayton, was initiated into the Gamma Chapter of the Alpha Beta Tau Fraternity at that school Wednesday evening. Mr. Devoe was pledged to the society two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kohl, N. King St., returned home Wednesday after enjoying a month's stay with friends at Sarasota, Fla.

Fire Chief William Hanifan returned to his duties Friday morning after enjoying a fifteen-day vacation.

Mr. Wilson Daugherty, near Midland City, O., has been spending this week with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pidgeon, S. Monroe St.

DISCUSS DEBATING TEAM FOR CENTRAL

First steps toward organization of a debating team to represent Xenia Central High School this year were taken at two student meetings Thursday.

The first meeting, a general assembly of the student body, was addressed by Attorney C. L. Darlington, prominent Xenia lawyer, who explained the advantages of training in debate.

Later in the day a meeting of all students interested in the plan was held and about twenty-five students expressed their interest. This meeting was addressed by Superintendent Louis Hammerle and Principal F. R. Woodruff.

Organization of the debating team will be under the direction of W. C. Boyce, head of the English department, and try-outs will be held soon, it is announced.

Soft, lovely hair!

The modern artist hair-dresser can do wonderful things with your hair. But all your hair-needs can not be supplied in the beauty shop. You must help at home. And that's where Danderine comes in. Danderine is so simple and easy to use. Each time you arrange your hair just put a little of this delicately fragranced liquid on your brush. As you draw it through the hair, Danderine removes excess oil, cleanses, brings out the natural color, gives your hair an amazing new lustre.

Used consistently, Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff, keeps the scalp comfortable and healthy; stops falling hair; helps make your hair grow long, silky and abundant. Your hair is so much easier to arrange and stays in place when Danderine is used. Waves "set" with it look nicer; stay in longer. Five million bottles used a year!

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF DISTRICT W. R. C.

Mrs. Carrie Bennett, Springfield, was elected president of the sixth district of the Woman's Relief Corps, at the district meeting at I. O. O. F. Hall, S. Detroit St., Thursday. Mrs. Bennett succeeds Mrs. Edith Norckauer, Xenia.

Mrs. Lucy Holzin, Morrow, was elected senior vice president and Mrs. Ida Stoops, Wilmington, press correspondent. Mrs. Christine Bryson, Washington C. H., was elected delegate to the national convention of the W. R. C. at Cincinnati, next year and Mrs. Norckauer was elected alternate.

The next district meeting will be held in Springfield during the month of October next year. One hundred and twenty-five women attended the all-day convention here.

XENIA TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD DEFENDANTS IN SUIT FOR MONEY

Five members of the Xenia Twp. Board of Education, as it was composed two years ago, and the clerk of the board, are named defendants in a suit for $394.05 filed in Common Pleas Court Friday by Mrs. Loberta Kinzer, widow of Joseph Kinzer, who claims that her late husband received no compensation for his services as teacher and janitor of the Hyslop school in Xenia Twp., from September 1, 1927 to December 22, 1927.

Defendants in the suit are: Horace Anderson, Union Road; Frank Weaver, Wilmington Pike; D. B. Conklin, Xenia; J. F. Shoemaker, Goes; C. E. Bone, Yellow Springs Road, and D. H. Barnes, High St. this city. Barnes is the present clerk and all of the others are still board members except Conklin.

The suit to recover alleged back salary due Mrs. Kinzer's late husband is against the defendants as individuals and judgment is not sought against the school board.

Kinzer died last September 25, and is survived by his widow and a 6-year-old daughter.

It is charged that previous to September 1, 1927 Kinzer was approached by the Xenia Twp. Board of Education for the purpose of employing him as an instructor in the Hyslop school but that he was never officially employed by the board although its members verbally contracted with him to teach with the understanding that he would be paid $115 a month plus $5 a month as salary for janitor service.

In the event he did not receive any compensation from the Xenia Twp. board or from the state, the members promised to see that he was paid by reimbursing him themselves rather than allow him to suffer any loss, the petition sets forth.

It is recalled that Kinzer had failed to pass his teacher's examination and was refused a teaching certificate by the county board of education. Regardless of this fact the Xenia Twp. school board contracted with Kinzer to teach at the school without a certificate, it is alleged.

Relying on the agreement Kinzer taught for nearly four months but whenever he requested compensation for his services the school board officials made excuses and fictitious promises and persuaded him to continue as instructor, the plaintiff claims.

Kinzer, however, was forced to seek outside employment, doing odd jobs such as cutting corn in order to provide food and properly clothe himself but continued to teach on the assumption that eventually he would be paid for his services, it is declared. According to Mrs. Kinzer, this condition existed until December 22, 1927 when due to lack of funds and the failure of the defendants to live up to their agreement, he was forced to give up the position and seek more rembunerative work.

Marcus McCallister is attorney for the plaintiff.

ELTONS GIVEN "CLEAN BILL"

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 1.— Charges of immorality against management of the Girls' Industrial School here were ignored by the grand jury after it heard ninety witnesses during an investigation covering seven days here. The jury reported yesterday, without indictments in the Industrial School case.

The prosecutor has decided upon no disposition of the evidence gathered during the probe, which may be turned over to the state welfare department for final action. Action of the grand jury ties the hands of the prosecutor against prosecution. Mrs. J. P. Elton and her husband, formerly of the O. S. and S. O. Home, Xenia, are in charge of the institution here.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY POMONA GRANGE AT ANNUAL MEETING

Guy H. Gordon was elected master of Greene County Pomona Grange when it met with Charity Grange at its hall, Wednesday.

William J. Baker was selected overseer; Mrs. Elsie J. Campbell, lecturer; Charles Graham, steward; Paul Harner, assistant steward; David Turner, chaplain; Walter St. John, treasurer; Joseph Hutchison, secretary; Russell H. Cosler, gate keeper; Miss Verna Huffman, Ceres; Miss Edna Burrell, Pomona; Miss Mary Jones, Flora and Mrs. Amos Frame, lady assistant steward.

Prof. Edwin S. Todd of Miami University gave a talk on "The Tax Limit Amendment."

A playlet, "The Club Woman," was given by Jamestown Grange and those taking part were Misses Ruth Murray, Mina Keach, Femia Lewis, Roxie Barnett, Mrs. H. C. Talbott and Walter St. John. "Mrs. Barker's Small Pox," a second play, was given by members of the Spring Valley Grange and those taking part were Misses Bertha Hartsock, Helen Sheehan, Anna Krug, Eva Mills and Lillie Huston.

The morning session was taken up with reports from the various subordinate and juvenile Granges, and other Grange business. At noon a dinner was served in the basement of the Grange hall.

An orchestra composed of Mrs. Ray Fudge, Mr. Joseph Hutchison, Mr. Ross Huston, and Mr. and Mrs. Ersle Hutchison, furnished music for the affair. Music and readings were given by Stephen Stedman, Mrs. Hannah Turner and the Xenia Grange Orchestra.

ODD FELLOWS TO HAVE ANNIVERSARY

Xenia Lodge No. 52, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will celebrate the eighty-fourth anniversary of Odd Fellowism in this city at the I. O. O. F. Hall, S. Detroit St., Thursday, November 7 at 8:30 p. m.

The lodge will be assisted by the Encampment, Rebekah's and the Good Fellowship Club.

Xenia Lodge No. 52 was instituted November 4, 1845 and is one of the oldest fraternal orders in this part of the country.

All members of the various branches of the order together with their families and friends are invited to attend. A splendid program is being arranged and will be announced later.

MANY ATTEND BIBLE CLASSES THURSDAY

In spite of the inclement weather a total of one hundred and forty-three women gathered in twenty homes throughout the city for the district Bible classes, Thursday afternoon.

An increasing interest was manifested among the women who studied a most helpful lesson on "Christ's Teaching About Salvation."

The largest number of women at any one meeting was fifteen at the home of Mrs. Jacob Marshall, N. Detroit St., District No. 1. At the home of Mrs. U. E. Clark, District No. 9 and Mrs. Rankin Grieve, District No. 19 there were eleven present. Mrs. J. F. Harshman reported ten present.

A meeting for the workers at the home of Mrs. H. E. Eavey preceded the Bible study and added much to the inspiration of the afternoon.

HALLOWE'EN QUIET POLICE HERE SAY

Hallowe'en passed rather quietly for police and no serious complaints of rowdyism were received at Police Headquarters Thursday night. Harmless pranks by boys were the basis of several reports received but there were no complaints of malicious destruction of property.

The detail of patrolmen on duty was augmented Thursday by three extra officers, who helped patrol the streets and keep order. Traffic was also handled efficiently despite the size of the crowd which thronged the streets and sidewalks.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

JESUS READS SCRIPTURE — The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor, hehath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4:18, 19.

THE FOREIGN SERVICE

The strain imposed on the army and navy by the frequent resignation of promising officers to accept more attractive positions in civil life is a matter of general knowledge. The armed defensive establishments of the country are spectacular; and it is obvious to the most casual citizen that to be effective they must be kept in the hands of highly trained personnels. Consequently, attention is periodically called to "the danger to which the nation is exposed" through the resignations of West Point and Annapolis graduates.

The loss to the country through resignations from the foreign service is less obvious to the man in the street; but to those familiar with the difficulties the state department has experienced in building up a trained personnel the recent resignations of six high officials in the foreign service is ominous. A Washington dispatch states that recent resignations have "severely depleted the upper ranks of American diplomacy." A prominent and recurring cause of dissatisfaction in the foreign service is said to be the practice at the capitol of sidetracking promotion lists for other legislation. The last list sent to congress was delayed five months and the one before that an entire year. The effects of this congressional indifference are to rob the promoted officials of just so many months of higher salaries and to weaken their morale by relegating them to a position in the esteem of congress somewhere behind that of a petitioner for private relief.

A trained personnel is just as essential to the proper performance of the state department's important duty of so conducting our foreign relations as to maintain peace, as it is to the war and navy departments in safeguarding the country in the event of war. When congress classified the foreign service and placed it on a more or less permanent basis, a great step forward was taken. The state department then had something in the way of a "career" to offer to young men who joined the service and remained long enough with it to become competent diplomatic and consular officials. A great many already have done so. The ablest of them cannot be expected to stay in the service if congress persists in drawing an invidious comparison between them and the pork barrel. The effect of their resignations will be to deter other ambitious young men from adopting the foreign service as a career.

MONUMENT TO AMERICA

Word comes from Nice that a descendant of Jay Gould has obtained permission from the French government to open a 100,000,000-franc gambling establishment in the vicinity of that pleasure resort. The casino will be ten times as large as that at Monte Carlo, with which it will compete in parting fools from their money.

Gould describes the gaming palace he is about to erect as "a place the Caesars could not have built." Quite likely. The Caesars gambled for worlds, with various success. Gambling over green-baize tables is a modern indoor sport, vastly more profitable to those who own the tables. All along the line from crap shooting to stock gambling, Americans have shown themselves willing learners. They have plenty of money to lose—and for the most part they lose it without a whimper.

At that, a great many Americans probably would have preferred to read that this scion of one of their most prominent and plutocratic families was about to erect on the outskirts of Nice a new five-and-ten-cent store. Other nations are likely to draw unmannerly comparisons between his palace of chance and the palace of peace that another American erected at The Hague. Ah, well, all sorts and conditions of people are necessary to make a nation—and we are a nation, aren't we?

From his Bowery rendezvous, Dan O'Brien, King of the Hoboes, has expounds the philosophy of his clan:

"While the rest of the world is racing to keep abreast of the mad, modern pace, the hoboes are the only ones with brains enough to sit down and think. They are all humanists. If one of them has a quarter and another hasn't anything, the 'rich' one will give the other a dime."

Daniel and his friends the 'boes may sit and think, but when it comes meal time they're usually pretty lively in getting to their feet, and then they have to go whining to some of the lads in the "mad, modern pace" for their chow.

Father Duffy, war-time "Fighting" chaplain of the 69th regiment, is waging an uphill battle to save his church in West 42nd street, a stone's throw from Times Square, from the encroachment of midtown commerce.

"But," says the exponent of The Church Militant, whose salary is $125 a week, "before I'll resort to begging or harping on money matters from my pulpit, I'll go out and engage in the honorable occupation of street cleaning."

THE WAY of the WORLD

PITY FOR WOMEN

Mabel Vernon, secretary of the National Woman's Party, says women in the United States are governed by laws which belong to the middle ages. Talking about women's supposed quality with men, Miss Vernon says there are more than a thousand laws that discriminate against women. Well, well, despite all that argument one feels that women do well in America. And women themselves are probably worrying as little as anybody about unfair laws.

YAHUAS

Speaking of women and their part in the world one notices that an expedition of scientists has discovered a tribe of Peruvian Indians called Yahuas. In this tribe the women are stronger than the males and are considered the rulers of the land. All of which is little news and not at all exciting. Their rouge, if you are interested, is made from the red seeds of the achiote tree.

REMEMBERING HEROES

Recently many cities in the United States, especially those where citizens of Polish descent live in large numbers, have been holding celebrations in honor of the Revolutionary war hero, Brigadier General Casimir Pulaski. The United States and Poland may well unite in the pride they feel in a great man. Our lives are inspired and uplifted by reviewing history and coming into contact again with nobility of character and heroic achievement.

ACTIVE MINDED

Adelaide Hamilton, 14-year old girl of Marshall, Iowa, read 312 books in one year. Some will say this is not normal and it is bad for the little girl to use her brain that way. The fact is with most of us the body is exercised too much and the brain too little. There are thousands of other young people—and grown up people, too—who might read five times as many books each year as they do and it wouldn't over-work their brains.

ADVERTISING PORTRAYED AS REQUIRING PROPER DIRECTION

By DR. JULUS KLEIN

Assistant Secretary of Commerce

(Dr. Julius Klein was born in San Jose, Cal., June 27, 1886, and was graduated from the University of California in 1907. He has made investigations in the archives of Latin-America and Europe in history and economics. Dr. Klein became chief of the Latin-American division of the U. S. department of commerce in 1917 and in 1921 was made director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. He was recently appointed assistant secretary of commerce.)

Greatly increased sales of automobiles, cigarettes and household articles reveal the power of well-planned advertising as an indispensible adjunct of commercial progress.

There is an urgent need for wise and vigorous direction of advertising, and the question now confronting the world is whether advertising will take full advantage of the tremendous industrial and financial currents tending to strengthen its position.

The multiplicity of new devices appearing on the market require merchants to apply advertising trade, as markets cannot be created unless products are clearly described.

Consequently the most powerful forces in the modern economic world are working, steadily and rapidly, to promote the expansion of advertising. New and exigent demands are, therefore, being made upon the advertising profession—upon its skill, its resourcefulness, its ethical integrity, its understanding of contemporary life and thought.

The conviction was expressed at Berlin that the advertising profession will respond to new demands with vigor and penetration, and so contribute greatly to the furtherance of material well-being and the raising of the standards of comfort, convenience and human happiness throughout the world.

"Advertising is the key to world prosperity." Under this slogan there has just been held in Berlin, Germany, a mammoth advertising exposition incident to the convention of the International Advertising association.

These two great events have served to focus the attention of the commercial and industrial world upon the present functions of international adversiung and its truly amazing progress during recent times.

One of the speakers at Berlin suggested that the earliest man to make use of advertising may have been "a cave dweller who allowed to be visible, from the entrance of his abode, more stone axes than a family of the prehistoric age customarily employed in the pursuit of food" —whether for belligerent or commercial purposes probably would not be clear until the aforesaid handman of the establishment were consulted.

From such simple beginnings as these down to the enormous displays in our newspapers and magazines today, and the infinitely complex and dazzling gyrations of our great electric signs, advertising has made giant strides. It is a truism to say that business today would be paralyzed without it.

Censure is the tax a man pays to the public for being eminent. —Swift

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Of course most of you have seen the immortal Isadora or read of her. She danced with such abandonment that she earned herself the title of the "Mad Isadora" over several continents. I should like to tell you a little of her life, for it was a fascinating one, only space does not permit.

Few could understand her uncontrolled emotions, but everyone was moved by her wonderful dance creations from the power and terror of March Slav to the delicate charm of the Brahms waltzes. Her wonder will live forever in the minds of those who had the good fortune to see her in her prime.

At the crest of her career, her sister Elizabeth gathered a few gifted girls about her and carried on the teachings of her sister Isadora here in America. In Russia, Isadora adopted more disciples and it is mostly from this original group that we have learned of the principles of her school.

That the body and soul are one, was the fundamental law of all of those who attempted to carry on the work of Isadora. All movement must begin from within and must be unending. In other words, the pupil is taught to feel a movement before she executes it, and even if it is only the lifting of a hand, she must let her whole body respond to that movement.

The "exercises"—though Isadora Duncan loathed the word and never used it in conjunction with her work—consisted of skipping, walking, running, jumping and all the rudimentary things which children do. In building the dances which all her pupils improvised, these simple movements alone were woven together.

One graceful bit of calisthenics originated by Isadora can be done by any one of us at home, and if followed regularly is sure to add grace and agility to the body. This is it: Spring to an astride position, with your feet flat on the floor. Then, pretending that your body is constructed like a rag doll's, relax and lower your upper body until your arms and hands are dangling listlessly to the floor. Now swing far to the left, still relaxed, then describe an arc with your upper body in the air and return to the original relaxed position, with your arms still dangling. Three such movements will be enough for your first effort. As you continue the exercise, you will find that your body grows limber and that any excess avoirdupois will disappear.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—All the gossip concerning prospects of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon's resignation has died down.

There was a good deal of it for awhile.

Occasionally, when a particularly convincing-sounding rumor was in circulation, a perfunctory denial would be put out, but the general impression was that, sooner or later, a show-down would arrive and the Pennsylvania multi-millionaire would quit.

The treasury head had things entirely his own way during the Coolidge regime. He did not concern himself with governmental questions outside his own department, but what he said concerning treasury policies went. There evidently was no argument about it.

This state of affairs did not lap over into the Hoover administration.

There were no signs of a fuss, but the new president's decisions, as given publicity, on issue after issue, were at variance with what everyone, in the least familiar with Secretary Mellon's ideas, knew to a certainty would have been the latter's preference, had the choice been left to him.

In fact, on sveral occasions the secretary, obviously speaking too soon, actually expressed himself one way, and then the president did something else.

Folk who consider themselves well acquainted with Mr. Mellon did not believe this could continue long.

With each succeeding incident, of the sort referred to above, they predicted, "Now he'll resign," and reports that he was on the verge of doing so would fly thick and fast.

After which he would not resign. "Oh, well," observers would say, the next time he will, for sure."

But one day recently, following an especially thick flock of rumors and another failure by Mr. Mellon to resign, a denial was issued which was not so perfunctory.

On the contrary, it had the ring of verisimilitude.

It did not sound like a denial based merely on the assumption that maybe there would be no resignation. It told exactly how long Mr. Mellon would stay—until the end of President Hoover's term. It was a denial of a kind which, were it to prove unfounded, would be not a little embarrassing to the administration—as indicating that it did not know what it was talking about.

There are denials and denials.

Some of them mean almost nothing; some clearly are intended to be the real thing. This one was of the latter class.

Accompanying this final, convincing denial was a little screed apiece by the three or four newspaper boys who are recognized as "in close touch" with the White House, reproving their less favored brethren for the baseless reports they had so frequently circulated.

The white haired boys had circulated them, too, but they did not mention that.)

Anyway, the rank outsiders believed, this time, what they were told.

That is, they accepted the latest denial at par.

But did they believe that the earlier denials meant the same thing that the last one did?—that the administration had been sure all along that Mr. Mellon never intended to resign?

Not so anyone could notice it.

They believed that President Hoover and Secretary Mellon finally had been to the mat—and that THEN it came out that Mr. Mellon did not want to resign.

Such things have happened before.

A pretty good man gets to thinking that the boss cannot do without him—that the boss will back up in the well known last analysis—and he tries it and discovers that the boss will not back up—whereupon, if the boss will let him, he backs up himself.

The impression prevails in Washington that Secretary Mellon backed up.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Lamb Chops
Spaghetti and Peas en Casserole
Celery Cranberry Sauce
Waffles
Syrup or Confectioner's Sugar
Coffee

Are the waffles too substantial a dessert with the menu? Some of us prefer nothing more on the menu when waffles are served. They are no richer than pumpkin or other rich pie, however. Simply eat smaller amounts of the other things.

Today's Receipes

Spaghetti and Peas en Casserole—Arrange alternate layers of prepared spaghetti, canned peas and cracker crumbs in a greased casserole. Pour over one cup canned tomatoes well seasoned, top with grated cheeese. Bake in a hot oven 20 minutes.

Waffles—To one and one-half cups prepared pancake flour add two tablespoons melted butter and two egg yolks beaten with one cup milk. Beat thoroughly. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. The batter should be about the consistency of thick cream.

Suggestions
Meat Cuts

No woman who knows the cuts of meat would buy a porterhouse steak and cook it in the casserole, for she knows a cheaper cut like the chuck or flank will do nicely for this purpose. By the way, the chuck is the first five ribs from the head of the animal. It is medium tough, depending upon the part. Some housewives will tell you this portion is good only for roasting and baking, but the butcher will tell you good steaks suitable for pan broiling are cut from the chuck and it makes excellent pot roasts and stews. The flank is the lower end of the loin, and is tough, so is used chiefly for stews and pot roasts, but the flank steak is best for beefsteak pie, rolled steak and steak a la Flamande.

Suggestions
Home-made Candy

Two cups light brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, one-half cup white corn syrup, one-half cup butter, one cup milk. Cook until it forms soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire and beat in eight marshmallows. Add one cup chopped nut meats and continue beating until it thickens. Pour out on inch deep greased pan.

GOOD AS CANDY COCOANUT KISSES
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipes)

One-half cup evaporated milk, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon almond extract, two cups shredded cocoanut. Combine ingredients in order given. Drop from a teaspoon onto a well greased (not buttered baking pan). Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Remove from pan while hot to prevent crushing. Makes 18 kisses.

TRY THIS ON YOUR FRIENDS
APPLE PUFF
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

One cup applesauce, half cup cream, one teaspoon lemon juice, four tablespoons chopped preserved ginger, sugar to taste. Whip the cream stiff, then mix with apple sauce and other ingredients. Pile in sherbet cups and chill. Serve with lady fingers, or slices of sponge or pound cake, if desired, but it's a rich dessert by itself.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Depraved Appetites.

Recently I told a reader who was fond of eating raw starch that she really was suffering from a form of pica, which is a depraved or perverted appetite for inedible substances. I said that pica not infrequently showed a mineral deficiency in the diet.

I am bringing this up again because I should not have limited the deficiency to minerals, for in reality these depraved appetites may also be due to a deficiency of other elements, especially the vitamins. In other words, the diet that is deficient in any way may result in a depraved or perverted appetite.

The craving for drugs and alcohol is a depraved appetite. How much of that may be due to a deficient diet, we don't know; but certainly the sufferers of such appetites should have their diets looked into. You remember not long ago, "Ex-Tank" wrote that he found tomato juice allaying his craving for liquor? Aside from the zest of the stimulating acid taste, tomatoes are very high in vitamins, and they no doubt supplied a need he had for them. Orange and other fruit juices and other vegetable juices would probably act the same. In the modern institutions where they treat drug and alcohol addicts, a nourishing diet, with especial attention to the vitamins, is part of the treatment.

Other effects of deficient diets, besides depraved appetite and lack of appetite, is a lowered tissue resistance. McCarrison, the famous English surgeon and scientist, found that monkeys on a deficient diet would develop dysentery, sometimes with amoeba (an organism which is the known cause of certain dysenteries), and other monkeys on a normal diet, but otherwise under exactly the same conditions, so the same opportunities for infection were present, would not develop dysentery!

It is well known that rickets is a disease due to a vitamin D deficiency, and that scurvy is a disease due to a deficiency of vitamin C, and pellagra, a disease due to lack of vitamin B and, perhaps, complete protein. It will probably be shown that some other obscure diseases are due to lack of either the vitamins or the mineral elements.

Do the possibilities of depraved appetites and lowered resistance to disease, and special diseases brought on by deficient diets, make you realize the importance of a normal diet? Do you know the principles of a normal diet? If you don't, send for our article on the subject. Do it now. (But don't forget to observe the column rules.)

"Is asthma hereditary? Z."

No, asthma is not hereditary, Z. There are different types of asthma, with many different causes. One of the causes that is being unearthed now more and more, through scientific study, is the sensitization of the asthmatic patient to some substance (this condition is known as allergy), and it may be through the diet, or from emanations from animals and even birds, or dust from feather pillows, mattresses, felt, etc. There are tests which will determine which substance is the offending one. You should see your physician for these.

There is also an asthma due to heart disease and, other diseases that might affect the mucous membranes lining the lobules of the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Needless to say, the asthma sufferer should live a decidedly hygienic life, so the importance of the diet, exercise, sleep and fresh air must be realized (also the avoidance of bad habits, such as smoking).

We have an article on Colds, Catarrh, Asthma, etc., which you may have. See column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. [illegible] UNIA LEE

The old, old question is asked in a letter just received. Should a woman continue to live with her husband if he is untrue to her?

No one can answer it but the wife herself. If a husband loves his family, is a good provider, and is kind and companionable—and some men are all these things and still have affairs with other women—the wife may find she would rather excuse his philanderings than break up her home.

She may love him too much to want to give him up, and she may decide that, humiliating and heartbreaking as these affairs are to her, she can excuse them more easily than she could a bad temper, lack of business ability or various other faults.

The wife in this case writes:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am 40 years old and my husband is 42. We have four children, ages 20, 18, 15 and 3. After 21 years of happy married life, I find that my husband has been unfaithful to me for years. The shock and full realization of it all has nearly wrecked my health.

"Went away on a visit, thinking after having been away from him he might promise to do better. He is a good provider, and seems to love his children, but stick pertinaciously to the fact that he will not give up his women acquaintances, nor his gambling.

"Am contemplating suing him for separate maintenance and staying away until he does promise to live right. He tells me that if I do he will sue me for divorce, which I do not want. His actions are humiliating and degrading to the family.

"Will I be doing right by leaving and trying to save him from his awful habits, or shall I go on sacrificing my happiness for the sake of the children? Remember, I am 40 years old, and am taking a chance. Will greatly appreciate your views on this all too common situation.

"MRS. W. R. B."

Your husband would have no grounds for suing you for divorce, my dear Mrs. B. You are the aggrieved party, not he. Won't he straighten up for the sake of the children? They are your strongest appeal. What do you mean, "Remember, I am 40 and taking a chance?" You are two years younger than your husband, and no woman of 40 is old these days. Don't think or act as if you were even middle-aged. You are just in your second youth.

If your husband won't try to live straight for the children's sake sue for separate maintenance, as you suggest.

C: So I told you not to marry until you were of age and you gave the boy friend the "cold shoulder" and now he's going with someone else? Well, I still think my advice good. If his love would not survive this little while, it would have been just too bad for you if you had married him, wouldn't it?

Sorry you are unhappy and jealous of his present girl friend, but, candidly, dear, I don't think it will last—your unhappiness, I mean. I am quite sure another boy will come along soon and you will be happy again.

BONNY GEAN: I cannot see that there would be any harm at all in driving over to the town where the boy friend lives and going to church or Sunday school or a show, if your people know about it and give their consent.

Boys always want to show their love in the way you mention and never seem to mind—or seldom do—that other people are about. And generally speaking, girls are more reticent. Don't worry about the matter. You can show him in many other ways that you think the world of him.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I would like your advice please. I have been going with a fellow I met on my vacation. He says he likes me, yet he tells me to get out and have a good time with other fellows. He has been to see me several times. What would you think about him?

I would think he is not in a position to be serious with a girl, Rose, so he, very thoughtfully, refuses to monopolize her time.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

JEWELS IN THE SUN

Stagg Beetle sat on a stone and mopped his face with his feelers.

"Yucky for you, Mrs. Rose, that your husband and I hadn't started off on the hunt. Seems like an off morning for us, doesn't it, Rose? Boy, here, got hung on my horns in the first place, and then your wife upset things all over again. Oh, well, there's another day coming. All's well that ends well."

"The sun is not over-high yet," remarked Grass-Green, squinting up at the sky and almost rolling on his back to do so. "We can still have the hunt if you, Stagg, and Rose are not too tired. Why don't you two get your breaths and when you are ready the rest of us will be. We'll wait at the foot of the red rose bush."

"Suits me," said Stagg.

"Me, too!" agreed Rose. "However, if you folks don't mind, I'm going to see my wife safe home. See you later!"

The devoted husband helped Mrs. Rose Beetle to her feet and, claw in claw, off the couple started. The sun shone on their coats of gold, green and silver and made them gleam like two bright jewels. Peter watched until they were out of sight.

"Fine looking couple, aren't they?" asked Stagg, looking after them admiringly.

"That they are!" declared Grass-Green. "But there's one thing to be said for all the Beetle family—they know how to dress and to keep up appearances." Grass-Green glanced around at his own sleek green suit with a satisfied smile.

"You'd make good soldiers," said Peter, suddenly. The boy had been studying Stagg.

"Why do you say that?" drawled Grass-Green, as he lazily snapped at a fly who buzzed too close to his head.

BIJOU THEATER TO OPEN WITH TALKING PICTURES SATURDAY

Dorothy Mackaill In "Hard To Get" Will Be Opening Night Feature; No Matinee Saturday; New Seats Are Installed

TALKING motion pictures will make their debut in Xenia Saturday night when the Bijou Theater, Green St., opens with its new sound apparatus featuring the First National picture, "Hard To Get" with Dorothy Mackaill in the leading role, according to J. T. Hibbert, owner and manager.

With the exception of last Saturday and Sunday, when silent pictures were shown, the Bijou has been dark for two weeks during the installation of the new sound equipment and new and comfortable seats.

The introduction of talkies here marks a new era in the process of picture entertainment in Xenia and is expected to be warmly welcomed by Xenia audiences. The theater has been equipped with Western Electric Co., sound equipment, said to be the most successful in use, and the projection machines are housed in a new booth, built outside the auditorium. The old booth projected into the auditorium at the rear, but was reached from an outside entrance.

Practically 500 new seats, of the cushioned style, which should make the theater much more comfortable for patrons, were installed after the sound installation was completed. With completion of the installation, silent pictures at this theater are abandoned entirely, and talkies will be shown every night in the week. The introduction of sound also eliminates the organ, with which silent pictures were accompanied.

New First National pictures have been booked for the opening in order to provide Xenia patrons with pictures they have not seen before, such as films which have been shown in nearby cities recently. Thus "Hard to Get", the Saturday night opening picture, is a brand-new film. Dorothy Mackaill plays the part of a "hard-boiled" manikin in a fashionable New York modiste shop in this picture. Charles Delaney plays opposite the star and in her supporting cast are Jimmy Finlayson, Louise Fazenda, Jack Oakie, Edmund Burns and Clarissa Selwynne. The film was directed by William Beaudine.

"Hard to Get" will be the opening night picture only, the program changing Sunday to "Twin Beds", which will be the attraction both Sunday and Monday. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week "The Great Divide" will be the feature picture followed by "Careless Age" for Friday and Saturday.

During the week of November 10 the program will include: "Young Nowheres", "Fast Life", "The Girl from Woolworths" and "Flight". Attention is called to the fact that the opening night program will be Saturday night only, there being no matinee.

STATE EDUCATION DIRECTOR TO SURVEY CAESARCREEK NEEDS

Regardless of whether the proposed $55,000 bond issue to finance construction of an addition to Caesarcreek Twp. High School carries at the November 5 election, Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, recommended Thursday following an inquiry into the school situation in the district, that the township board of education delay action on the project until completion of a survey to be made by the state educational department at his suggestion.

It is feared by Director Clifton that inasmuch as the township faces eventual centralization of its schools and since its tax duplicate is small, the extra expense entailed by the contemplated erection of an addition to the school would boost the tax rate too high and result in an excessive burden on the tax-payers. It is pointed out that centralization would call for an entirely different type of building from the present high school with enlargement proposed.

The matter has been further complicated by the disclosure of agitation in the eastern part of the township for a transfer to the Jefferson Twp. district, which has a centralized school at Bowersville. Some time ago an application for the transfer was rejected by the County Board of Education and it was soon afterward that the bond issue to enlarge the high school was authorized by the Caesarcreek Twp. school board.

The proposed addition would also include an auditorium which would be of benefit to the community as well as the high school. Voting a bond issue, which would become a lien upon property in the township, would prevent transfer of any property out of the school district, it is declared. As a result residents of the district are also said to look somewhat with disfavor on the project.

Director Clifton came to Greene County Wednesday to look over the school situation in both Caesarcreek and Beavercreek Twp. rural school districts.

The state director did not make a personal visit to Caesarcreek although he did inspect the Beavercreek High School, which will be abandoned if a proposed $155,000 bond issue for the erection of a new consolidated high school in the township is approved at the November election.

Director Clifton declared that the Beavercreek Twp. bond issue meets with the approval of the state department and that since the district has a tax duplicate of $4,500,000 the cost of the project is not prohibitive.

The state department has notified the board that the present school building no longer measures up to present-day requirements and that an up-to-date structure is necessary if the school is to continue to receive high school recognition.

The only districts in the county without centralization or consolidation are Xenia, Beavercreek and Silvercreek Twps. These townships contain forty-one and two-roomed schools.

PROTESTANT WOMEN MEET IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—More than sixty Protestant women church workers from cities throughout Ohio are in session here today to arrange for group discussions in the third annual Ohio conference of church women, which is to be held here January 21.

Mrs. S. W. Rosenberger, of Steubenville, was selected to arrange for the group discussion on "motion pictures and the drama."

Arrangements for discussion of "the Philippine treasure chest project" will be made by Mrs. Harry Lybarger, of Coshocton, it was decided.

CENTRAL SECONDS MAKE GRID DEBUT

A squad of fifteen boys who make up the combined eighth grade and freshman football team organized ten days ago under the direction of Glen Patterson, assistant Xenia Central High School coach, received its baptism in a practice game with the O. S. and S. O. Home second team on the home gridiron Thursday afternoon.

It was not a regulation game, however, but gave both squads an opportunity to gain experience in scrimmage play.

Although considerably outweighed, the Xenia Central youngsters gave a good account of themselves in the opinion of Patterson, who was particularly outspoken in his praise of five boys, including Earl Jeffries, an eighth grade end, and the following freshman: Carl Smith, center, Burton Baker, fullback; Richard Stiles, end, and Fred Dalton, halfback.

The tackling was uniformly good but additional practice in blocking is needed, Patterson said.

TRANSFER OFFICES TO HOSPITAL WING

Transfer of offices maintained by Drs. B. R. McClellan, R. R. McClellan and T. F. Myler in a building at 7 E. Second St., to a newly-constructed addition to McClellan Hospital on Roger St. will be made Saturday.

The building, owned by Dr. B. R. McClellan, local surgeon and head of McClellan Hospital, has been occupied by him for office purposes since 1898 and has been used for physician offices for nearly 100 years. Disposition of the building which will be vacant following the removal Saturday, has not been determined upon.

Facilities for offices, a clinical laboratory, an X-ray room and treatment rooms are provided in the new wing to the hospital constructed on the south side. The addition contains twelve rooms.

BOOSTERS ENDORSE REGIME OF BURTON

Present administration of affairs of the O. S. and S. O. Home under the regime of Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent, was endorsed in a resolution adopted by the Southwestern Booster Association, a unit of the Spanish-American War Veterans' Association, at its meeting at Memorial Hall, Dayton, last Sunday, it is revealed.

Another gesture of confidence in the present administration of the institution was a dinner given at Cincinnati Thursday night by the two Spanish-American War Veterans' Association posts of that city, at which Col. and Mrs. Burton were guests of honor.

BLAME RACKETEERS FOR CHICAGO BOMB

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Prolonged warfare among beer racketeers was blamed today for a bomb explosion which tore away the porch and blew out the front wall of the Villa Venice roadhouse at Wheeling, a suburb.

Although the place was badly damaged its only occupant, Mrs. Albert Bounher, wife of the owner, was unhurt.

BILLIARDS

A pocket billiard tournament is to be sponsored by the Recreation Parlor, beginning next Monday, it is announced by Morris Sharp, proprietor. The tourney, which will be open to anyone caring to enter, will last two weeks and suitable prizes will be awarded.

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well — doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

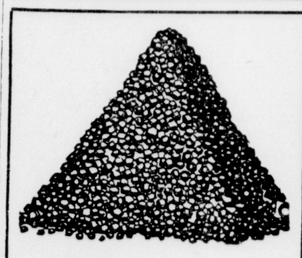

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, loggy and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better . . . I felt better and acted better . . . I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—to relieve it. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MAKING THE BIBLE PRACTICAL

President Hoover says, "There is no other book so various as the Bible, nor one so full of concentrated wisdom. Whether it be of the law, business, morals or that vision which leads the imagination in the creation of constructive enterprises for the happiness of mankind, he who seeks for guidance in any of these things may look inside its covers and find illumination. As a nation we are indebted to the Book of Books for our national ideals and representative institutions. Their preservation rests in adhering to its principles."

The Sunday School presents a program of Bible study and the public service of worship offers practical Bible expositions. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

©1927 D CARL YODER

The several passages of this lesson converge upon universal ground of brotherhood and faith and worship, and these leave no room for division and strife and war, but bind the whole world into unity and common good will and mutual service.

V. 2. "And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains and shall be exalted above the hills; and all the nations shall flow to it." Jehovah's house is the temple and "the mountain of Jehovah's hill" is the temple mountain. The prophet sees the time when all nations shall come to Jerusalem to learn the true religion.

V. 4. "And he will judge between the nations and will decide concerning many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." This prophecy foreshadows world justice and law and a court to administer it; the kingdom of God on earth is the fulfillment of this idealistic thought—a day when all will have such universal sympathies as to recognize the broader ties of common blood, one brotherhood.

V. 22. "And Paul stood in the midst of the Areopagus, and said, ye men of Athens, in all things, I perceive that ye are very religious." Paul appealed to the religious nature of the Greeks and thus put himself in sympathy with his audience that he might lead them to higher ground.

V. 23. "For as I passed along, and observed the objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription 'To an unknown God' What therefore ye worship in ignorance, this I set forth unto you." By their own engraved confession, they needed the light of God's truth.

V. 24. "The God who made the world and all things therein, He being Lord of Heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands." Greek religion was pantheistic at its root and denied creation; Paul exposed this error by separating God from his creation and exalting Him above it.

V. 25. "Neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth life, and breath and all things." Men can give nothing to God except what God has first given to men, though he is pleased with men's offerings as a proof of their love.

Vs. 26, 27. "And he made of one every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, having determined their appointed seasons, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek God, if happily they might seek after him, though he is not far from each one of us." The cherished beliefs of these Greeks was that men were of different origins and races and ranks and in their hearts they were thankful they were not like others; this error was broken down with the fact of the universal fatherhood and providence of God. The purpose of creation was that all men might become searchers of God who is so near that there is no excuse of failure in finding him.

V. 21. "Jesus said unto her, woman, believe me, the hour cometh when neither in this mountain, not in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father. The true worship of God does not lie in externals, in particular places, or in particular forms or by special ceremonies; these may be aids to worship, but it is of first importance to worship God "in spirit and in truth."

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

©1927 D CARL YODER

1. What are some of the vital truths in heathen religions? What vital truth in the religion at Athens?
2. What is the secret of world peace?
3. Why should our government join the World Court?
4. Why should the United States not enter the League of Nations?
5. What are the practical steps our nation should take to promote world peace?
6. What part ought the churches take in bringing the world reign of peace nearer?

Clericus says, "The world has tried to effect world peace by means of war long enough; peace through mutual understanding, not through rivalry, competition and strife, is the Christian ideal. We must at least reduce the world to a basis of law and conduct its international relations according to the Christian principles of justice and righteousness."

Lesson Prayer. "We would exalt thee, O God, and so own Thee as our Father that we would naturally think of all men as our brothers. We would seek peace as a program for the family of God and we would pursue it with all our hearts.

BOOK REVIIEW

"Experimentation and Measurement in Religious Education," by Watson, Association Press, is designed primarily for use in teacher training classes but would be of interest to all teachers of religion. It is essentially practical and readable.

World Religious News

The American Tract Society will distribute 5,000,000 tracts this year to combat the rising tide of atheism.

Plans are being formulated for a celebration April 13, 1930 of the principle of religious freedom as enunciated by Thomas Jefferson who was born that day. The commemoration will be known as "Religious Freedom Day," and it is hoped to make it a prominent national event.

Three priests of the Order of White Fathers, African Catholic missionaries have established a novitiate in Cleveland, Ohio. This foundation is said to be the first of this order in the United States.

The winner of the religious novel contest conducted by the Christian Herald and the Doubleday-Doran Company, has just been announced. The award of $2500 for the novel best interpreting the spirit of Christianity to the modern world, goes to Eli Millen of New York, whose novel "Bethel" was adjudged the best out of the hundreds submitted.

Professor Wilbur C. Thoburn of Lucknow Christian College, now studying in Chicago University is one of three members of the fourth generation of the Thoburn family serving the Methodist Church in India.

Dr. Benjamin S. Winchester, president of the Hymn Society, announces that the society's award of $100 for the best new missionary hymn has been won by Professor Henry Hallam Tweedy of the Yale Divinity School. His words, "Eternal God, Whose Power Upholds" was adjudged the best of more than 100 hymns submitted, from all over the world. A prize is now bing offered for a new tune for Professor Tweedy's hymn.

The Radio Parish church with headquarters in Portland, Maine, now has an estimated audience of 100,000. The church is organized as a non-denominational body with a full time pastor who devotes his entire time to his radio flock within reach. Lighthouse-keepers, woods men and farmers in isolated districts of Canada, Nova Scotia and northern New England are among the listeners.

CHEERFULNESS

When Mr. Rockefeller, aged 88, was enroute to his winter home in Florida his train stopped for fifteen minutes at Savannah. Deferential reporters asked the beaming old man for a statement.

"This," said he, "is a copy of my daily prayer which I read at least once daily."

Reporters read: "Heavenly Father we thank Thee for the glad and wholesome contagion of cheerfulness. If frowns and distempers are contagious, we thank Thee that smiles are not less so. By the strange law of increase, gladness begets gladness. Remembering then that no frown ever made a heart glad, help us to go forth to meet the day with high hope and smiling face; and even though it has not beeen eas yto smile let us rejoice if so we have been able to add to the sum of human happiness and make burdens lighter."

..Of what value are rewards in religious education?

One aim in religious education is to have pupils find satisfaction in the work itself and in the development of greater capacity and skill. The satisfaction should be intrinsic, in the work itself, and not in some extrinsic reward, as is seen in the works of great artists, scientists, and poets. Rewards and recognitions are valuable only to the degree in which they increase interest in the work itself and center attention on worth while objectives. They are a menace when they become ends in themselves. Should rewards be given they should have character value as good books or pictures.

Recognitions are meritorious in acknowledging work done rather than reward for doing it. They may be fittingly given for consistent effort and real improvement such as the giving of certificates with honor to all who complete the study and enterprise of the class. Rewards such as pins and badges are becoming out of date, as better psychology and pedagogy is being taught and religious leaders adopt the improved standards of religious education.

THE EYES OF JESUS

I found the Man talking quietly with village folk.....and each one's weal and woe lay in His eyes.

I found the Man watching little children play. They'd hedged Him in a charmed circle; a flower wreathed crown was on His brow. His eyes were a jeweled May-dawn.

I found the Man weeping by His friend's grave side.....I wonder what he who had been in the shadow saw in his Friend's eyes.

I found the Man at the temple door. 'Twas not the whips that drove the merchants forth. The eyes of the Man were terrible with flame, terrible with tears.

I found the Man climbing his last hill. 'Twas evening and the world was growing dark, But in His eyes was dawn-light's glory from beyond the Hill.

Well, comrades of the Roads, this world needs nothing quite so much as His dream.—H. B. Williams.

COHAN TO PRODUCE PLAY BY CLERIC

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 1. — "New York" a play written by the Rev. Charles Root, curate of St. Joseph's Church here, will be produced in Los Angeles beginning Thanksgiving Day as a George M. Cohan production, according to word received by Rev. Root today.

The play, which was presented in Cleveland last year to raise parish funds, attracted the attention of theatrical managers there who recommended it to Cohan.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

"Believe it or not," Lewis Stone, the veteran motion picture actor, will be fifty years of age next November 15. He doesn't look it, but the fact remains that he was born half a century ago in Worcester, Mass.

Stone went on the stage fairly early and since changing his affects to the screen, has been one of the pillars of the profession. He is said to be one of the two men whom it is incredible to imagine as playing a slapstick part in a comedy. The other is Clive Brook—they're the two most dignified men in the films.

Stone has appeared in "Cytheria", "Lost World", "Fine Clothes", "Private Life of Helen of Troy", "Prisoner of Zenda", "Woman of Affairs", "Trial of Mary Dugan", "Scaramouche" and many other important films, but his best work is said to have been done as Pahlen in "The Patriot".

* * *

He is one of the few actors equally popular with both men and women movie goers. He is not a very tall man, although he gives the appearance of height. Five feet, ten and one-half inches is his height. He weighs 165 pounds and likes to wear quiet clothes. He has hazel eyes and gray hair, his mustache is gray and always trimmed the same. Recently he divorced his second wife and is said to be planning another marriage. He has two grown daughters by his first marriage, who are starting stage work.

* * *

Wonder if Lew Fonseca, the baseball player, is still spending his winters on the stage? Fonseca won the American League batting championship last season by his excellent stick work with the Cleveland Indians. He used to warble right merrily on various and sundry vaudeville circuits during the baseball off-months. But maybe a man who can tap a baseball at a .400 clip doesn't have to spend his winters on the two-a-day. However, a little fame little that in the line of sport endeavor, is open Sesame to the footlights. Witness "Mule" Haas the Philadelphia Athletic centerfielder who broke up the World Series with that vicious home run and his teammate Mickey Cochrane, the Mack's star catcher. There are two Thespians for you. Those two babies are trying to out-do John Barrymore with a vaudeville skit this winter. Stifle a yawn.

* * *

You wouldn't believe it, would you, that Lewis Stone, above, one of the film's most dignified, is preparing to celebrate his fiftieth birthday? Well, he is. November 15 is the date.

Minute Reviews of Plays in NEW YORK

MLLE. MODISTE, with Fritzi Scheff as the star in her original part, at the Casino: A revival that brings back the delightful operetta tunes of the late Victor Herbert and causes us to meditate how present-day musical comedy has not improved on the scores of twenty years ago.

STREET SCENE, at the Playhouse: Elmer Rice's Pulitzer prize play of last year, with its clear-cut character drawing of folk who try to get something out of life in New York's tenements, continues with seats at a premium. Its producer says it will run till 1931. No American can play now on excels it.

IN CHICAGO

NEW MOON, at the Great Northern: This musical of old New Orleans (also in New York), with its lovers and villains and a southern isle, is going at a capacity pace. Its singing and its costumes please. Above the average, but nothing striking. More than a year in New York.

Twenty Years '09- Ago -'29

Mr. Homer Hudson left on one of his frequent jaunts to Denver, Colo., where he has mining and land interests.

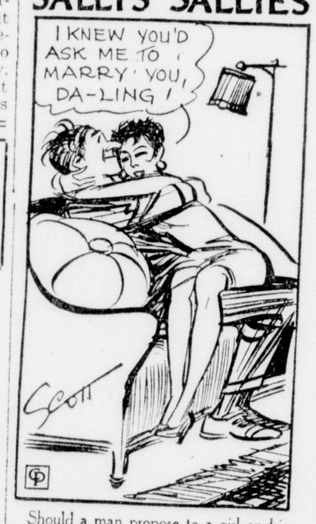

Marking the second vacation he has taken in eighteen years, Mr. John O'Connell, well know engineer at the Pennsylvania Railroad pumping station, has just returned to work after a short vacation which he spent in Columbus.

Raymond Cox was host at a delightful Hallowe'en party, a masquerade affair attended by twenty-five guests dressed in fancy costumes.

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, is stunned with the death of her widow mother, the town seamstress of Rendale, Pa. Penniless, and without any knowledge of the world, she scarcely knows where to turn when Kenessa Du Barry, burlesque actress, returns to visit her mother and offers her two dresses and fifteen dollars to go to Philadelphia in search of a job. Kenessa sends Rosalie to Mother Murphy's boarding house. She meets Tim O'Hara, 14, newsie on the corner, who adores her and calls her "Queen."

Rosalie finds a job at the hosiery counter of Boggs and Clarke store. The morning she goes to work she discovers a "run" in her only pair of silk stockings and is compelled to wear her old school cotton ones. Ann Schultz, head salesgirl in hosiery, is amazed at the old-fashioned hose, and makes fun of them. Rosalie, heartsick, is struck with an idea that both shames and frightens her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XI

By the middle of the afternoon Rosalie had firmly convinced herself that taking a pair of the stockings, just until she could pay for them Saturday, was only "borrowing."

It was the idea of how to do this, and fear that someone would see her, that drove a sick fear through her heart. One minute she was cold, the next minute hot, flushed, and almost ready to believe Ann suspected what she was thinking about. She imagined Ann was eyeing her slyly, and that she was not acting naturally.

A little after 4 o'clock Ann left the counter.

"I'm gonna renew the shellac on my maidenly countenance, angel face," she told her. "Think you can run the show while I'm gone?"

"I'll do my best." Rosalie tried to smile naturally and turned cold all over.

There was no one at the counter. With an elaborate show of straightening the stock, and looking sharply from the corner of her eye, Rosalie pushed a box of the stockings to the floor.

Then, with a pretended rueful expression for her accident she stopped down and picked all but one pair from the floor. When she got up a gray-haired lady in a little old-fashioned hat and dress was standing by the counter.

"What can I do for you?" Rosalie again tried to smile naturally and in a professional manner.

The old lady looked rather at a loss.

"Well, dearie, I don't just know. It's my granddaughter's birthday tomorrow and I wanted to get her somethin' right nice. She wears these kind of pretty stockings, and, maybe, you can pick a pair for me. Something about a dollar."

Dollar hosiery was rare at the Boggs and Clarke store and Rosalie had quite a time unearthing a pair from stock. But, she selected what she considered the most expensive looking shade and held them under the light.

"My, them are pretty," the old gray head shook in admiration. "In my day I never set eyes on a pair."

As Rosalie put them in the bag she watched her admiringly:

"My, you girls these days are just that smart! What I'd a done in a noisy, big city like this when I was a girl! Things has changed so!"

"This is the first day I ever worked," Rosalie confided. "I was never in a city in my life until day before yesterday."

"Sakes alive! And you ain't scared! Got people here, I spose?"

"Nobody," Rosalie said it rather proudly.

"Dear, me!" The aged woman wagged her head in perplexity. "I don't know what the world's comin' to. My granddaughter works, too. In a decoratin' shop. Calls it a career."

"Well, believe me, angel face, you work fast!"

"I'm working because I have to," Rosalie felt a little defense of herself was in order.

"Well, look sharp, dear! It's a bad world. Full of handsome men with evil hearts—and women, too. God bless you and keep you from the ways of evil."

The last was said like a benediction. It was almost like her mother had said it. Rosalie again felt a sharp sickening pain in her heart for what she was about to do. But the temptation to escape from more of the jibes and glances of the silken-shod girls around her drove her to desperation.

She stooped down and slipped the hose down the front of her dress. For a little while she poked among the boxes as though she were rearranging them. How could she ever stand up and face the world?

Suppose the stockings showed in her waist? Utter terror seized her, and she would have taken them out had she not just then heard a pleasant male voice above the counter.

"What do you think you are, young lady, an ostrich?"

Gasping with fear Rosalie stood up and the store seemed to whirl around and around. It couldn't be her voice answering the tall, dark-haired stranger who smiled at her and showed a row of flashing white teeth.

"I—I was fixing the boxes."

The young man laughed in such a natural friendly manner that Rosalie was reassured. He hadn't seen her. She glanced down cautiously at her dress front and convinced herself that the hose did not show through. But they were like a lump of lead lying on her heart.

"What can I do for you?" she asked him in the way she had heard Ann Schultz addressing people all day.

He placed a hand on his hip and put a finger coyly in the corner of his mouth.

"Oh, dearie me. I don't just know. Perhaps a nice red pair—"

Rosalie dimpled despite her heavy heart and his eyes opened wide.

"Dimples! Well, I've been taking a look at you every chance I got today. But I didn't know you had dimples, besides."

"Besides what?" Rosalie looked prim.

"The face of a Helen of Troy and the chassis of a Venus de Milo."

"You, you work in the store, then?"

"Oh, yes, quite—" he grinned at her. "I'm not a rank outsider come to force my way into your acquaintance. We are, so to speak, formally introduced. My name is Roy. I am in the business office. And your name?"

"Rosalie."

She looked at him shyly and saw that his hair was straight and very dark brown and his eyes dark gray and full of laughter. He was tall, and, yes, quite the most dashing and heroic young man she had ever had conversation with.

He stood looking at her, an amused light playing in his mischevious eyes.

"I suppose no young blade has taken it upon himself today to tell you that you are quite the prettiest damsel in the store."

Again she blushed and dimpled, just as Ann came back and saw Roy lean toward her and smile.

He nodded to Ann and walked away.

"Well!" Ann put her hands on her hips and shook her yellow head. "Believe me, angel face, you work fast. But so does he, for that matter."

"I don't," Rosalie said, haughtily, "even know who the young man is."

"Only Roy Clarke Andrews, heir to all the Clarke millions and nephew of the owner of this joint," Ann informed her, equally loftily.

Rosalie had almost forgotten the stockings in her dress. But the rest of the afternoon was a nightmare.

When 5:30 came she almost flew to the time clock to check out and get away from the store. She felt as though a monster were pursuing her.

PARTITION SOUGHT; DIVORCE IS ASKED; OTHER COURT NEWS

Partition of three tracts of real estate situated in Bath Twp., is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Stella Bryan, R. F. D., No. 3, Urbana, daughter and one of the heirs of the late Sarah Harner, who died December 16, 1924. The plaintiff claims to own a one-fourteenth interest in the land.

Defendants in the action, also heirs of the decedent, are: Nettie M. Harner, patient at the Dayton State Hospital; Evelyn Duncan, R. F. D. No. 3, Osborn; Amy Harper, R. F. D. No. 4, Dalton, O.; Ella Black, 882 8th St., Massillon, O.; Cora Stauffer, R. F. D. No. 7, Xenia; Dorothy Roby, Fairfield; Esther Grisson, Osborn; Bernice Graham, Fairfield; Mildred Norris, Osborn; George Harner, Osborn; and O. B. Kauffman, as guardian of Amos Harner, Osborn. Morris D. Rice, Osborn attorney, represents the plaintiff.

DIVORCE ASKED

Complaining that her husband not only associates with other women but also boasts of it to her, Bertha Wheelen has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Earl Wheelen on grounds of extreme cruelty. They were married January 5, 1910 and have one child, Howard, 18. The plaintiff seeks to be decreed alimony and asks that the defendant be enjoined from disposing of their property.

SEEK PARTITION

Lura E. Dunkel, R. F. D. No. 8, Springfield, is plaintiff in a suit on file in Common Pleas Court seeking partition of real estate located in Fairfield Village. According to the petition the plaintiff is an heir of John P. Schroeder, who died February 5, 1912, intestate, and owns a one-third interest in the premises.

Most of the defendants in the suit are also heirs. They are: Carl F. Schroeder and Florence Schroeder, his wife; Elizabeth Esterline and James F. Esterline, her husband; J. F. Esterline, as administrator of the estate of Anna Schroeder, deceased, widow of John P. Schroeder; and Aaron H. Dunkel, husband of the plaintiff. C. A. Olinger is attorney for the plaintiff.

MISS GILLESPIE IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Miss Catherine Gillespie passed away at her home at 202 Cincinnati Ave., at 6:15 o'clock Thursday evening following a stroke of paralysis. She had been in ill health for the last year and a half and was stricken with paralysis last August.

Miss Gillespie was the daughter of the late James and Mary Dugan Gillespie and was born in New York City but came to this city when a small child and spent almost all her life here.

She is survived by one sister, Miss Brigid Gillespie of Xenia, a brother James, of Springfield and a niece, Miss Augusta Galloway of Xenia.

She was a member of St. Brigid's Church. Funeral services will be held at the church at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning. Burial will be made in the Catholic Cemetery.

No wonder this OHIO Mother is proud

"MY little son, Bobby, was troubled a lot with constipation," says Mrs. Rose Temple, 5883 Pearl Road, Cleveland. "He got very weak, run-down and underweight. I gave him California Fig Syrup; and in just a little while he was eating heartily and gaining. Now I'm proud as can be; he's so robust, bright and active."

Temporary relief should be far from the first consideration when a child shows by bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, or a listless, weak condition, that he's constipated. Of course, the child's system needs a prompt cleansing. But the youngster's bowels also need toning and strengthening.

That's where California Fig Syrup does its best work. It helps strengthen the bowel muscles; gives tone to a weak stomach. That's why faulty digestion improves with its use; bowel movements become regular and remain so.

Every child loves its flavor; its cleansing action is prompt but gentle. A pure vegetable product; no danger of causing the laxative habit. It has full medical endorsement. There are many imitations; but the word California marks the genuine.

FALL SENTENCED TO YEAR IN JAIL

BOOTLEG LOANS MAY BE DISCONTINUED; REPORT SHRINKAGE

Corporation Loans To Brokers Have Grown Rapidly

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A shrinkage of $1,380,000,000 in bootleg loans, as rpeorted by the federal reserve board in its weekly brokers' loan statement this week, raises the question as to the probable discontinuance of corporation loans to stock brokers, whether directly or through the medium of the New York City banks.

The term bootleg, as applied to loans on stocks and bonds, was coined to denote the loaning of money to carry stocks in the brokers accounts, by any person or corporation, outside of the regular banking channels. The system was built up chiefly through the high interest rates offered in the call loan market for idle funds of corporations, investment trusts and even wealthy individuals, and a 10 and 15 per cent rate eventually attracted money from over the ocean and Canada.

The bankers plainly were opposed to handling money in this way. They preferred straight deposits in the banks, as heretofore, the funds thus placed to be put out on call, as required, at rates determined by the law of supply and demand. By the end of September of this year, however, bootleg call money loaning had grown so rapidly that nearly 55 per cent of the total of "loans against stocks and bonds," as reported by the reserve board, came through this channel.

A return to normal interest rates in the call loan market, and heavy liquidation of public holdings of speculative stocks, with deflation of ballooned stock prices, will eventually show the door to bootleg loans. This is the prevailing view in Wall Street today.

This week's report shows that the New York banks increased their call loans $992,000,000, at the same time withdrawing for the out-of-town banks a total of $707,000,000 from the speculative money market. The net result is a decrease of $1,096,000,000 in the aggregate of brokers' loans for the week, an unprecedented shrinkage and a measure of the violent downward sweep of security prices on the stock exchange.

Brokers' loans down a billion dollars in a week. This is a staggering performance and almost challenges the accuracy of the figures submitted by the reserve board statisticians. What if security prices in the aggregate did shrink five or six billion dollars in this period? Thousands of shares of stocks were untouched by buyers and sellers. They were held tightly by investors and speculators who refused to be stampeded into selling. Many of these speculators deposited new margins by the millions of dollars, accounts were strengthened and others "taken over" by the banks.

The billion and a quarter dollars withdrawn by the corporations and investment trusts will now be put to work in other channels, investments trusts will buy stocks—have already bought them; corporations can use the money to good advantage in current operations. Now that the cream is off the call loan high-interest market, industrial companies will be satisfied to deposit their money in the banks at 2 or 3 per cent, leaving the banks to make a modest profit in call loans, or as advances to bond syndicates.

Bootleg loans today total 2,443 million dollars, against 3,823 millions a week ago, probabilities are volume will decline over the r-end, particularly if interest rates fall.

ASSIGN JUDGE TO TRY ARNOLD CASE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Common Pleas Judge Charles Turnbaugh, of Cambridge, will preside at the second trial of Elias and Arthur Arnold, 63-year-old father and 17-year-old son—for the kidnaping of Melvin Horst, 4, it was announced today by Chief Justice C. T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme Court. The new trial is to be held at Wooster, starting December 2.

The two Arnolds after being convicted of "child-stealing", were imprisoned. Later, however, they were liberated on bond pending a decision on their appeal.

The Supreme Court recently upheld the decree of the Wayne County appelate court granting the Arnolds a new trial.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE ALOFT DURING TEST

CARDINGTON, Eng., Nov. 1.—Carrying several passengers and its usual crew, Great Britain's great dirigible, the R-101, soared forth today on an eight hour test flight in which tests of its speed were to be made.

In its previous flights, no attempt was made to push the huge craft to its top speed.

BINGHAM MAY OFFER APOLOGY TO DODGE CENSURE OF SENATE

Will Face Reprimand As Alternative In Lobby Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—An apology or a reprimand.

This alternative faced Senator Hiram Bingham (R) of Conn., in the senate today as the outgrowth of his employment of a paid lobbyist to aid in drafting the new tariff bill.

Hoping to avert direct censure from the senate, Bingham's friends were urging him to make an apology for the employment of Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut Manufacturers Association, and for having charged that the senate lobby investigating committee was "framed" against him. There were numerous indications that Bingham would make the desired apology, thus avoiding punishment from the senate.

Leaders of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition were ready to support the resolution of censure that Senator Norris (R) of Nebr., has drafted. This resolution would condemn Bingham's use of Eyanson in no uncertain terms, and assert that it reflect against the honor and dignity of the senate. Norris was ready to abandon the resolution if Bingham made the "mande honorable" to the senate.

The Connecticut senator meanwhile faced fresh troubles in the serious charges of Thomas L. Hill, president of the American Society for the Promotion of Aviation, that Bingham was the "mouthpiece" of a "gigantic air trust and super lobby."

Hill gave the lobby committee a list of witnesses, who, he said, would prove his charges that the "super air lobby" had grabbed all government aircraft contracts and was seeking $100,000,000 more. He charged the lobby was costing the lives of "countless" fliers.

The lobby committee took these new charges under advisement.

The Eyanson case however was immediately pending, with Norris ready to introduce the censure resolution if Bingham failed to apologize.

One of Bingham's friends explained his attitude to International News Service.

"Senator Bingham was conscious of no wrong doing," said this friend. "He committed no dishonest act. He intended solely to help his constitutents and the ailing industries of the East, which are the backbone of the country's prosperity. He saw the plight of various industries in his state and New England and he wated expert advise on how to properly secure relief for them.

"He thought he was doing a perfectly proper act. He was doing what he conceived to be his senatorial duty and if the senate believes he did wrong, he is willing to admit his error—a political error and not one of his conscience."

Admits Bank Theft

After disappearing for a week, John R. Thornburn, president of an Urbana, Ill., banking company, has returned and admitted to embezzling $100,000 of the school funds entrusted to the institution, according to authorities to whom he surrendered. The bank had closed following his disappearance.

THOUSANDS FROLIC THURSDAY NIGHT AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Bad Weather Fails To Dampen Arder Of Revelers

Threatening weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of several thousand people who either participated or watched the Hallowee'n frolic sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchant's Association Thursday night.

Despite a drizzling rain several hundred masqueraders in all kinds of costumes marched in the parade that was the outstanding feature of the community celebration. The parade extended for three blocks and was augmented by the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band and a combination band representing the Bath Twp. High School and Osborn town musical organizations.

Music was not lacking and neither was merry-making. The procession disbanded at the Court House square after passing in review several times before the judges' stand on the south side of the Court House.

E. Main St. between Detroit and Whiteman Sts., was roped off and a detail of police kept vehicular traffic out of this reserved section which was devoted to the celebrators.

Following the parade a number of contests were held in which fifty cash and merchandise prizes valued at $200, donated by Xenia business men, were awarded. The contests included pie eating, doughnut eating, apple eating and a hog calling contest which had three entrants. Buck and wing and other specialty dancing was also featured on the platform erected for the occasion.

Isadore M. Hyman acted as master of ceremonies for the contests, all of which had a large number of entries. Prizes were also awarded for many different kinds of costumes.

It is estimated that several thousand people congregated about the platform in merry groups and a holiday mood dominated the occasion.

LAUNCH FIGHT ON TAX EVASION RUSE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1. — A statewide war against a ruse whereby some farmers allegedly escape payment of the state gasoline tax is to be waged by the Ohio Tax Commission.

Under the Buckeye state laws, the farmers can demand a rebate on their gasoline tax on the fuel they use in their tractors and other farm implements, excluding the automobile.

The tax commission alleges that some of the farmers say they are using the gasoline for their tractors, when, in reality, they are using it in their automobiles.

The fight against this practice was started today.

A Lorain County farmer was cited to appear before the tax commission to explain his demand for a rebate of $24 on 700 gallons of gasoline. Members of the commission would not disclose the name of the alleged "tax-dodger," pointing out that the offense was a minor one.

They issued a warning, however, that prosecutions will be started if the practice is not stopped.

NOVA SCOTIA VOTES WET; PROHIBITION LAW IS ABANDONED

Distribute Liquor After Thirteen Years Dry

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 1.—After thirteen years of prohibition the voters of Nova Scotia today were on record as favoring the lifting of the ban on liquor and allowing its distribution and sale through government agencies.

Latest returns indicated that the wets had rolled up a huge majority which may reach 30,000 in the plebescite taken on the question. Returns from outlying districts are still missing, but these are not sufficiently numerous to alter the result.

In the last plebescite on the question, taken ten years ago, the drys hung up a majority of some 55,000 votes. Since then, however, there has been much agitation for the return of liquor. Ontario's overwhelming indorsement of government controlled liquor sales and a desire to escape from evils of bootlegging also were regarded as major factors in turning the tide from dry to wet.

In all the larger cities, the vote against prohibition was something like five to one. Amusingly belying its name, Sober Island indicated the trend of the voting in the early returns by recording a vote of 214 to 6 against prohibition.

With Nova Scotia again in the ranks of the wet provinces, only Prince Edward Island, of all the Dominion of Canada, remains dry.

U. S. Consul Arrives in Rome

Leon Dominan, United States Consul at Rome, Italy, arrives with his wife on the liner De Grasse for a two-month leave of absence, which he will spend in the United States.

FIVE OHIOANS SUGGESTED AS SENATOR BURTON'S SUCCESSOR

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—Names of five Ohioans were circulated freely in state political circles today as possibilities to succeed the late Senator Theodore E. Burton to his unexpired term in the United States senate.

They are: Postmaster General Walter F. Brown of Toledo, who is rumored as President Hoover's choice; Col. Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, who stepped out of the senatorial race in 1928 in favor of Senator Burton; Roscoe C. McCulloch of Canton, chairman of the state utilities commission; E. W. Edwards of Cincinnati, banker and friend of the governor, and William H. Boyd, Cleveland attorney.

Reports that Governor Cooper was considering himself a possibility for the post—that he would resign, turning the governorship oved to Lieut. Gov. John Brown, and step into the senatorial post himself—were definitely "spiked" by the state executive as he entrained here early today for Columbus. He admitted, however, that he had received proposals to that effect.

"I was elected to be governor by the people of this state, and I propose to keep that contract," Gov. Cooper said.

When asked if he had received any word from President Hoover regarding Senator Burton's successor, the governor said: "I think all the president wants is a man favorable to the national administration."

At a conference held here last night between Gov. Cooper, Postmaster General Brown, State Finance Director Harry D. Silver and Joseph R. Nutt, national Republican treasurer, it was believed the selection was partially settled. Gov. Cooper told reporters early today he would definitely make up his mind within the next twenty-four hours and announce his decision within three days.

WALL STREET WORKS DURING HOLIDAY TO CLEAN UP BUSINESS

Tension Lifted; Market Regains Stability

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Wall Street was taking stock and "mopping up" today after the most turbulent curtailed business week in its history.

The New York Stock Exchange was closed, and so was the Curb Exchange, and they will remain closed until Monday. Yet there was plenty to do, and the man power of the financial district was engaged in putting in "a full day." This, in itself, was a relief from working "around the clock."

While the tickers were silent, brokers and their employes were busy straightening out accumulated business. They were hard at it in posting books, delivering stocks, adjusting complaints of customers and making out reports. All officers of member firms of both exchanges were open.

The financial giants of "the street" seemed much relieved. The tension was lifted. The stock market has regained its poise and stability, in the opinion of leading bankers. They are looking forward to a cessation of the "wild" markets. They see normalcy just ahead.

Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan and Company, in an informal statement last night, declared there had been no conference of the "big six" banking group yesterday in regard to the market situation and he did not look for any over the week-end.

The general view of leading bankers is that the "crisis" has passed.

FORD CUTS PRICES FROM $15 TO $200

DETROIT, Nov. 1.—The Ford Motor Company announced a price cut on all its models today.

The reduction ranges from $15 on the roadster to $200 on the town car or limousine. This brings the price of the roadster to $435 F. O. B. Detroit and the town car, the most expensive in the line, down to $1,200.

Edsel B. Ford, president of the company, in announcing the cut, said "We are reducing prices now because we feel that such a step is the best contribution that can be made to assure a continuation of good business throughout the country. Our dealers are assisting by accepting reductions in their discounts."

The company's cash balance is said to have shown a steady increase and production has been maintained steadily in the past month at the rate of 7,300 cars per day. In announcing the cut the Ford Company is reported to have wired a full page advertisement to every daily newspaper in the United States.

REBEL CHINESE THREATEN CANTON

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The rebel Chinese are threatening Canton again, according to a Hong Kong dispatch published in The Times today.

The rebel general Chang Fat Kwai is reported to have entered the state of Kwangsi and is said to be threatening Canton from the northwest. The Nationalists have concentrated three divisions to combat the rebel drive.

Residents of Canton are reported almost hysterically fearful of a possible bombardment of the city.

DROWNS IN BATHTUB

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 1.—Falling asleep in the tub, William Linger, 36, dredgeman, of Sandusky, was drowned while taking a bath in a hotel room here last night. Coroner A. R. Grierson returned a verdict of death by accidental drowning today.

SEVEN DROWNED WHEN LAKE SHIPS COLLIDE

Search For Missing Bodies; Blame Fog For Tragedy

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis., Nov. 1.—Search was begun today for missing bodies and possible survivors lost following a collision between two lake steamships which rolled the S. S. Senator over on its side and plunged its captain and six others to their deaths in Lake Michigan's chill waters yesterday.

The ore freighter Marquette crawled into Milwaukee's harbor last night, a gaping hole smashed in its bow.

Surrounded by a dense blanket of fog, the Senator and Marquette collided. The Senator plunged to the bottom within ten minutes, leaving twenty-eight members of the crew struggling in the water.

The radio of the Marquette, flashing out an S. O. S. after the crash, gave the alarming report that it had lost track of the Senator's wreckage and feared the entire crew was lost. Shipping tons of water through the gash torn in its prow, the Marquette lowered boats and picked up three men.

Sixteen men were picked out of the water by the tug Delos Smith. Others were snatched from the water by smaller craft.

SENATE SPLIT OVER HOOVER DEMAND FOR TARIFF ENACTMENT

Propose Limitation Of Debate To Help Reach Solution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Limitation of debate on the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was proposed today as a battered and factionally split senate rankled under the sting of President Hoover's implied criticism of tariff delay.

Despite the reluctance of the senate to change its time-honored rule of unrestricted debate, even for a brief period, the proposal was being seriously considered both by progressive Republicans and others often labelled members of the president's official family.

Debate restriction was suggested as an alternative to the plan of Sen. Wesley L. Jones of Washington, acting Republican leader in the absence of Sen. Watson (R) of Indiana, to turn the task of writing the tariff bill over to the Democratic-Progressive Republican coalition.

Refusal of some of the "Old Guard" members to have anything to do with the Jones proposal was believed to doom it, despite the high hopes of the Republican leader for compliance with Mr. Hoover's request to speed passage of the bill in two weeks' time.

Sen. Borah (R) of Idaho, a coalition leader and an advocate of liberal senate rules, first suggested limitation of a general agreement which would permit some discussion upon every item in the bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Not in many years of bloc battling, alliance making, and factional coalescing in congress has Washington witnessed such a strange political mix-up as existed in the senate today over President Hoover's demand that the tariff bill be enacted within two weeks.

The regular Republicans are split the Democrats are split, the Republican insurgents are split, and the coalition of Democrats and Insurgent Republicans, which has demonstrated its ability to control at every step in this tariff-making, has been rent asunder by Mr. Hoover's sudden intervention in the tariff war.

Such Republican high-protection stalwarts as Senators Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Smoot (R) of Utah, are at odds on whether the tariff bill should be abandoned as an incorrigible child, or an attempt made to nurse it to enactment under conditions wholly unacceptable to the industrial east.

Such consistent dissenters as Senators Borah (R) of Idaho, Johnson (R) of California, and Norris (R) of Nebraska, differ on Mr. Hoover's demand, the Idahoan insisting that it can be met, and the Californian professing to disbelieve that the president could have made such an "incredible" request.

The tariff Democrats like Walsh of Massachusetts, Ransdell and Broussard of Louisiana, and Fletcher of Florida, are at variance with the majority of their Democratic colleagues.

NO DEPRESSION COMING

Spending Habit Of America Helps Point To Plenty Of Business

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — American's insatiable appetite for luxuries and unrestrainable propensity for spending money was held out today as a nearly certain guarantee against a serious business depression, feared in some quarters as a result of the $15,000,000,000 stock market crash.

Because Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are real spenders and want several changes of raiment, different type and colored shoes, new automobiles every two or three years, the latest radios and other necessities and luxuries innumerable, trade should be kept booming, in the opinion of treasury and commerce officials.

This spending habit, which grew out of war coupled with the rapid market recovery-drops in the London and New York rediscount rates, releasing of more than a million dollars from the New York Stock market through reduced brokers loans, and the assurance of a high treasury executive that easy money is here—all pointed to business and plenty of it for the winter season.

In fact the treasury predicted a Christmas buying jamboree not incomparable with the record trade of 1927 and 1928 holidays, despite the huge losses sustained by the general public in the market debacle.

COLD WAVE COMING

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Ohio is in for a mild cold snap, weather observers said here today. Temperatures will drop about 20 degrees and hover around the 40 mark. The cold weather will continue over the week end.

THIRD LEADER WILL ATTEMPT TO CREATE CABINET IN FRANCE

Briand Takes Post Of Foreign Minister Under Tardieu

PARIS, Nov. 1.—"I hope to announce my cabinet list tomorrow and convoke parliament next Thursday," M. Tardieu, the latest French political leader to attempt to form a new government stated today after a conference with President Doumergue.

Thus he expressed his certainty that he would succeed where two others, M. Daladier and M. Clementel, had failed.

"M. Briand has accepted the post of foreign minister in the new cabinet and is collaborating with me," he added.

Political observers, while inclined to be non-commital in view of the happenings of the past eleven days, were hopeful Tardieu had found the key to a situation which has left France without a government during that time.

M. Tardieu's attempt differs from that of his two predecessors in that, if successful, it will in all probability result in the formation of a cabinet having distinctly nationalistic tendencies.

M. Daladier tried to form a government which would have been distinctly left, or radical, in complexion. M. Clementel attempted to form a seemingly moderate cabinet with left leanings.

M. Tardieu is expected to veer away over to the right for a cabinet which should turn out to be as conservative as would be possible without inciting so much left and center opposition as to make its inception impossible.

Out of the muddle of the whole crucial political situation there appears to be one figure who, apparently, has to be appeased by all would-be government leaders.

He is former Premier Briand, who was deposed eleven days ago when the chamber of deputies failed to give him a vote of confidence.

MAC DONALDS GIVEN POPULAR OVATION

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, bearing important diplomatic achievements garnered on his visit to President Hoover and the United States, returned to London this afternoon in the role of a popular if not a conquering hero.

Huge crowds lined the route of his journey from Euston station to his official residence at 10 Downing Street, and they accorded the prime minister and his daughter, Ishbel, a popular welcome such as is seldom witnessed in this staid old town. So noisy was the reception that it was termed by some as a "welcome a la New York."

Mr. MacDonald appeared very well, but complained some of neuritis, which he said affected his right arm.

PAY LAST RESPECTS TO SENATOR BURTON

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—With the body of Ohio's late Senator Theodore E. Burton entrusted to Cleveland for always today, senators and officials from Washington who attended the statesman's funeral here yesterday, were returning to their official duties.

The remains of the veteran Ohio representative were laid to rest in Lake View cemetery late yesterday after thousands of Clevelanders, Ohioans, and dignitaries from over the nation had paid their last respects to Senator Burton's memory.

FORMER SECRETARY OF INTERIOR FINED $100,000 BY JUDGE

Prison Term May Never Be Served; Will Stand In Records

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, was sentenced today to a year in prison and fined $100,000 for accepting from E. L. Doheny another $100,000 after he had leased the California oil baron the Elk Hills naval reserve. The jury that tried the ex-cabinet officer said it was a bribe.

The prison sentence however was somewhat of the sympathetic variety, Justice William Hitz announcing from the bench that if Fall were compelled to go to prison at this time he would have suspended that part of it.

For the purposes of the record Judge Hitz specified that the District of Columbia jail would be the place of confinement. This is the prison where Harry Sinclair is now completing nine months for contempt of court, his sentence growing out of his oil dealings with Fall. Had there been an additional day tacked on the sentence meted out to Fall the place of confinement would have been the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

The sentence given Fall was generally approved on Capitol Hill where the oil cases originated. Senators showed a reluctance to comment but there appeared to be considerable satisfaction that Fall had been given a jail sentence instead of just a fine. Inasmuch as Fall's attorneys are planning to appeal the sentence to the supreme court and in view of Fall's pitiable physical condition, the court decided to tack on the prison sentence, even though it probably never will be served. It will stand in the record against him for all time, the first prison sentence ever pronounced on a cabinet officer of the United States for the commission of a felony.

The fine was only one third of the amount which the court could have imposed upon the aged defendant. The law specified that the fine could have been three times the amount of the bribe or $300,000 but the court only assessed the amount of the bribe, $100,000. Fall did not show any sign of emotion when the sentence was passed. A sister, Mrs. Jauett Elliott, who was in court, bowed her head and wept softly. Mrs. Fall took the sentence as did her husband.

IDENTIFY IONE ORD BUT SHE THREATENS SUICIDE IN PRISON

Under Close Guard To Prevent Woman Ending Life

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 1.—A sheriff's guard was to stand watch at the jail cell of Gloria Ouzer today as "Ione Ord" of the Jack Kraft murder mystery threatened to commit suicide rather than face her mother in her prison quarters.

"I will not see her in a prison cell," the girl declared. "My mother will not find me alive in a jail."

Sheriff Ernest Alberti, of Plaquemine Parish, custodian of the girl artist held as a material witness in the killing of the New York pressman, indicated he accepted the declaration as a serious threat of suicide and promised a guard would be posted.

Miss Ouzer steadfastly maintained that her name was Ione Ord until she was identified by acquaintances. She was traveling on the steamship Creole with Kraft when he was killed and his body tossed overboard into the Mississippi River. Her story of the events surrounding the killing led to a grand jury indictment of John McGouldrick, second mate of the ship.

The girl admitted she had been married to an Englishman whom she met in France some years ago. She said the French divorce courts had granted her a divorce decree.

Attorneys for Sam Epstein, steward of the ship held as a material witness, have obtained a court order fixing Monday as the time for taking Epstein's testimony in the court at Ponte a La Hache.

This will be taken in the presence of McGouldrick, and Epstein likely will be submitted to direct questioning with attorneys representing all principals participating.

BOWERY MOURNS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Bowery today mourned the passing of Charles T. "Daddy" Wichmann, who, ever since his retirement as a tailor with a modest income, had sewed buttons, patched pants and pressed suits free.

TAILORING AND SHOE SHOPS ABOLISHED AT HOME BY NEW ORDER

Trades Dropped By Order; Will Buy Uniforms, Shoes

THE tailoring and shoe shops at the O. S. and S. O. Home are to be abolished by Col. C. V. Burton, superintendent, under an order made following a conference Wednesday with Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, who is said to have approved of the decision. The order takes effect November 15.

The only employe affected by the order is Charles Breiel, who has been employed as shoemaker foreman at the home for many years. The death of Charles P. March last October 23 created a vacancy in the tailor shop over which March had presided as foreman for eighteen years.

Both shops have for many years been engaged in making shoes and clothing for the Home children, including uniforms for the boys.

Elimination of the two shops had been recommended by Superintendent Burton to the board of trustees last May in connection with plans for re-organizing the trades at the institution, it being his desire to provide more satisfactory training for the boys instead of employing them in the tailor and shoe shops.

The shoe repair department, however, will be continued, giving the boys an opportunity for training in this vocation. The older girls will also still have training in sewing under a domestic science teacher and will make most of their own clothing as well as garments for some of the younger children.

Supt. Burton declared that hereafter uniforms and footwear for the boys will be purchased and that the boys have already been outfitted for the winter with shoes bought from the Excelsior Shoe Co., Portsmouth, O. The girls also have enough shoes for the present along with the galoshes obtained for them last winter, it is announced.

One of the first steps in the reorganization of trades at the home was taken recently with the employment of J. E. Balmer, Sidney as supervisor of trades, in charge of all vocations. The educational department is being revised under the supervision of Director Clifton.

AUTOIST BURNED AS CAR CATCHES FIRE; TRUCK DESTROYED

Attempting to smother the flames with a coat when his Durant touring car caught fire from a short circuit in the wiring, Leroy Breakall, 228 Bellbrook Ave., was painfully burned on one hand early Thursday night. The auto was parked in front of The Chicken House, W. Second St. Breakall was successful in extinguishing the blaze before the arrival of firemen.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks VapoRub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing".

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its familiar slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popularity of Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standby for all colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.

$3. The alarm was turned in at 7:14 p. m.

A semi-trailer truck loaded with about eighty acetylene tanks and valued at $4,000, was practically destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock Friday morning on the Cincinnati Pike, three miles south of Xenia, according to Sheriff Ohmer Tate, who made an investigation. The truck, owned by a Columbus firm, was being driven from Columbus to Cincinnati when it caught fire. The driver, whose name was not learned, was not hurt.

Becoming frightened when a box underneath a hot plate was ignited, a colored maid at the First U. P. Church parsonage, 215 E. Church St., turned in an alarm at 2:35 p. m. Thursday. Firemen put out the blaze with a chemical. There was no damage. The parsonage is occupied by the Rev. J. P. Lytle and family.

XENIA TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD APPEAL

The Xenia Township Citizens' School Committee presents to the voters of the Xenia Township School District as Candidates for Board of Education, to be voted on at next Tuesday's election: Frank Weaver, Harry Hagler and James B. Harner, for the vital interest they manifest in the cause of Education.

In deciding on candidates for your approval, it was considered of prime importance that the fundamental policy of the citizens of the Xenia Township School District, to keep politics out of our schools, should be strongly upheld. These candidates will consider the problems of the Board from the view-point of the entire township regardless of Race or Creed.

Two of these men have already demonstrated their fitness on the board; one of these two having recently become a member on the recommendation of the citizens to the board; and all three are successful in their private affairs.

We admire the statement of the Board some months ago that: "The Books of the Board are open to inspection by the Public and Tax-Payers any Time, and will always be kept so, while this Board is in power."

The Xenia Township Citizens School Committee.

ELEAZER CHURCH HOLDS MASQUERADE

Sixty members and friends of Eleazer Church, south of Xenia, enjoyed a Hallowe'en masquerade social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jones, near Cedarville, Taursday evening. Prizes were given to Mrs. Fred Fugate for having the prettiest costume and Mrs. Laura Earley for the most grotesque. Jean Mason was presented a prize for the best costumed child.

Games and stunts were enjoyed, one of the features of the evening being a will-writing contest. Each person had to bequeath his five most cherished possessions to someone and much merriment followed when the wills were read. A fortune-telling booth also was an enjoyable feature.

Supper was served cafeteria style late in the evening, with Hallowe'en appointments and decorations being used. Mrs. Emery Oglesbee and Mrs. Floyd Weaver were in charge of the social.

The November social meeting will be held at the church with Mrs. Cherles Lewis and Mrs. Oakley Edgington, the committee in charge.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE WELL ATTENDED

Approximately forty couples attended the Hallowe'en dance at Mauck Hall, Jamestown, Thursday night. Max Jenks and his orchestra furnished music for the dancing.

This is the first of a series of dances to be given at the hall. There will be an invitation dance at the hall every Friday evening.

The orchestra is composed of Miss Leontine Jenks, Messrs. Herbert Wheeler, Philip Campbell, Howard Luck, Brooks Reeder and the leader.

WILL GIVE SUPPER

Members of White Chapel M. E. Church are sponsoring a fried chicken supper at the church Friday eevning November 8 at 6:30 o'clock, to which the public is invited.

The basement of the church has been recently remodeled and the funds received from the supper will be used to buy new kitchen equipment. Those wishing to attend the supper are asked to call in their reservations early.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Penewit, Spring Valley, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday evening, when a group of relatives and friends gathered at their home and enjoyed an oyster supper.

Following the supper the evening was spent in reminiscences, music and congratulations.

The house was beautifully decorated with fall flowers and a large golden wedding bell. A large wedding cake was the center piece at the table.

Mrs. Penewit, a well known music teacher, who taught music for many years in three adjoining counties, played the same music on her fiftieth anniversary that she played on her weddfng day.

Mr. Penewit's sister, Mrs. Laura Hurley, who baked the wedding cake for her brother's wedding day, baked the cake for his fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Penewit received many useful and dainty gifts.

JOINT HOSTESSES AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The Misses Mildred Compton and Mildred Jordan, entertained at a delightful Hallowe'en party at the home of the latter on Fayette St., Wednesday evening. The guests arrived masked and Miss Aletha Devoe was awarded a prize for being the best dressed, and Miss Thelma Keiter for having the most comical costume.

Games and contests were enjoyed by the guests, prizes being awarded Miss Alberta Murray and Miss Donna Devoe. Late in the evening a refreshment course was served by the hostesses, the color scheme and appointments being suggestive of the Hallowe'en season. Each guest was presented a dainty favor.

Those who attended the party were the Misses Aletha Devoe, Alberta Murray, Evelyn Ary, Virginia Cross, Donna Devoe, Pauline Springer, Juanita McPherson, Thelma Ketter, Laura Mae Hansell and the hostesses.

ENTERTAINS WITH HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Master Harris and Gerald Lane, Cincinnati Pike, entertained a group of their friends with a Hallowee'n party, Tuesday evening.

The evening was spent in games and music after which a refreshment course was served.

Mr. Leon Trader, N. Detroit St. has accepted a position as salesman for the Bryant Motor Sales, E. Market St.

Mr. Donald Devoe, south of Xenia, student at Miami-Jacobs Business College, Dayton, was initiated into the Gamma Chapter of the Alpha Beta Tau Fraternity at that school Wednesday evening. Mr. Devoe was pledged to the society two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kohl, N. King St., returned home Wednesday after enjoying a month's stay with friends at Sarasota, Fla.

Fire Chief William Hanifan returned to his duties Friday morning after enjoying a fifteen-day vacation.

Mr. Wilson Daugherty, near Midland City, O., has been spending this week with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pidgeon, S. Monroe St.

Soft, lovely hair!

The modern artist hair-dresser can do wonderful things with your hair. But all your hair-needs can not be supplied in the beauty shop. You must help at home. And that's where Danderine comes in. Danderine is so simple and easy to use. Each time you arrange your hair just put a little of this delicately fragranced liquid on your brush. As you draw it through the hair, Danderine removes excess oil, cleanses, brings out the natural color, gives your hair an amazing new lustre.

Used consistently, Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff, keeps the scalp comfortable and healthy; stops falling hair; helps make your hair grow long, silky and abundant. Your hair is so much easier to arrange and stays in place when Danderine is used. Waves "set" with it look nicer; stay in longer. Five million bottles used a year!

DISCUSS DEBATING TEAM FOR CENTRAL

First steps toward organization of a debating team to represent Xenia Central High School this year were taken at two student meetings Thursday.

The first meeting, a general assembly of the student body, was addressed by Attorney C. L. Darlington, prominent Xenia lawyer, who explained the advantages of training in debate.

Later in the day a meeting of all students interested in the plan was held and about twenty-five students expressed their interest. This meeting was addressed by Superintendent Louis Hammerle and Principal F. R. Woodruff.

Organization of the debating team will be under the direction of W. C. Boyce, head of the English department, and try-outs will be held soon, it is announced.

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF DISTRICT W. R. C.

Mrs. Carrie Bennett, Springfield, was elected president of the sixth district of the Woman's Relief Corps, at the district meeting at I. O. O. F. Hall, S. Detroit St., Thursday. Mrs. Bennett succeeds Mrs. Edith Norckauer, Xenia.

Mrs. Lucy Holzin, Morrow, was elected senior vice president and Mrs. Ida Stoops, Wilmington, press correspondent. Mrs. Christine Bryson, Washington C. H., was elected delegate to the national convention of the W. R. C. at Cincinnati, next year and Mrs. Norckauer was elected alternate.

The next district meeting will be held in Springfield during the month of October next year. One hundred and twenty-five women attended the all-day convention here.

XENIA TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD DEFENDANTS IN SUIT FOR MONEY

Five members of the Xenia Twp. Board of Education, as it was composed two years ago, and the clerk of the board, are named defendants in a suit for $394.05 filed in Common Pleas Court Friday by Mrs. Loberta Kinzer, widow of Joseph Kinzer, who claims that her late husband received no compensation for his services as teacher and janitor of the Hyslop school in Xenia Twp., from September 1, 1927 to December 22, 1927.

Defendants in the suit are: Horace Anderson, Union Road; Frank Weaver, Wilmington Pike; D. B. Conklin, Xenia; J. F. Shoemaker, Goes; C. E. Bone, Yellow Springs Road, and D. H. Barnes, High St. this city. Barnes is the present clerk and all of the others are still board members except Conklin.

The suit to recover alleged back salary due Mrs. Kinzer's late husband is against the defendants as individuals and judgment is not sought against the school board.

Kinzer died last September 25, and is survived by his widow and a 6-year-old daughter.

It is charged that previous to September 1, 1927 Kinzer was approached by the Xenia Twp. Board of Education for the purpose of employing him as an instructor in the Hyslop school but that he was never officially employed by the board although its members verbally contracted with him to teach with the understanding that he would be paid $115 a month plus $5 a month as salary for janitor service.

In the event he did not receive any compensation from the Xenia Twp. board or from the state, the members promised to see that he was paid by reimbursing him themselves rather than allow him to suffer any loss, the petition sets forth.

It is recalled that Kinzer had failed to pass his teacher's examination and was refused a teaching certificate by the county board of education. Regardless of this fact the Xenia Twp. school board contracted with Kinzer to teach at the school without a certificate, it is alleged.

Relying on the agreement Kinzer taught for nearly four months but whenever he requested compensation for his services the school board officials made excuses and fictitious promises and persuaded him to continue as instructor, the plaintiff claims.

Kinzer, however, was forced to seek outside employment, doing odd jobs such as cutting corn in order to provide food and properly clothe himself but continued to teach on the assumption that eventually he would be paid for his services, it is declared. According to Mrs. Kinzer, this condition existed until December 22, 1927 when due to lack of funds and the failure of the defendants to live up to their agreement, he was forced to give up the position and seek more rembunerative work.

Marcus McCallister is attorney for the plaintiff.

ELTONS GIVEN "CLEAN BILL"

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 1.— Charges of immorality against management of the Girls' Industrial School here were ignored by the grand jury after it heard ninety witnesses during an investigation covering seven days here. The jury reported yesterday, without indictments in the Industrial School case.

The prosecutor has decided upon no disposition of the evidence gathered during the probe, which may be turned over to the state welfare department for final action. Action of the grand jury ties the hands of the prosecutor against prosecution. Mrs. J. P. Elton and her husband, formerly of the O. S. and S. O. Home, Xenia, are in charge of the institution here.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY POMONA GRANGE AT ANNUAL MEETING

Guy H. Gordon was elected master of Greene County Pomona Grange when it met with Charity Grange at its hall, Wednesday.

William J. Baker was selected overseer; Mrs. Elsie J. Campbell, lecturer; Charles Graham, steward; Paul Harner, assistant steward; David Turner, chaplain; Walter St. John, treasurer; Joseph Hutchison, secretary; Russell H. Cosler, gate keeper; Miss Verna Huffman, Ceres; Miss Edna Burrell, Pomona; Miss Mary Jones, Flora and Mrs. Amos Frame, lady assistant steward.

Prof. Edwin S. Todd of Miami University gave a talk on "The Tax Limit Amendment."

A playlet, "The Club Woman," was given by Jamestown Grange and those taking part were Misses Ruth Murray, Mina Keach, Femia Lewis, Roxie Barnett, Mrs. H. C. Talbott and Walter St. John. "Mrs. Barker's Small Pox," a second play, was given by members of the Spring Valley Grange and those taking part were Misses Bertha Hartsock, Helen Sheehan, Anna Krug, Eva Mills and Lillie Huston.

The morning session was taken up with reports from the various subordinate and juvenile Granges, and other Grange business. At noon a dinner was served in the basement of the Grange hall.

An orchestra composed of Mrs. Ray Fudge, Mr. Joseph Hutchison, Mr. Ross Huston, and Mr. and Mrs. Ersle Hutchison, furnished music for the affair. Music and readings were given by Stephen Stedman, Mrs. Hannah Turner and the Xenia Grange Orchestra.

ODD FELLOWS TO HAVE ANNIVERSARY

Xenia Lodge No. 52, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will celebrate the eighty-fourth anniversary of Odd Fellowism in this city at the I. O. O. F. Hall, S. Detroit St., Thursday, November 7 at 8:30 p. m.

The lodge will be assisted by the Encampment, Rebekah's and the Good Fellowship Club.

Xenia Lodge No. 52 was instituted November 4, 1845 and is one of the oldest fraternal orders in this part of the country.

All members of the various branches of the order together with their families and friends are invited to attend. A splendid program is being arranged and will be announced later.

MANY ATTEND BIBLE CLASSES THURSDAY

In spite of the inclement weather a total of one hundred and forty-three women gathered in twenty homes throughout the city for the district Bible classes, Thursday afternoon.

An increasing interest was manifested among the women who studied a most helpful lesson on "Christ's Teaching About Salvation."

The largest number of women at any one meeting was fifteen at the home of Mrs. Jacob Marshall, N. Detroit St., District No. 1. At the home of Mrs. U. E. Clark, District No. 9 and Mrs. Rankin Grieve, District No. 19 there were eleven present. Mrs. J. F. Harshman reported ten present.

A meeting for the workers at the home of Mrs. H. E. Eavey preceded the Bible study and added much to the inspiration of the afternoon.

HALLOWE'EN QUIET POLICE HERE SAY

Hallowe'en passed rather quietly for police and no serious complaints of rowdyism were received at Police Headquarters Thursday night. Harmless pranks by boys were the basis of several reports received but there were no complaints of malicious destruction of property.

The detail of patrolmen on duty was augmented Thursday by three extra officers, who helped patrol the streets and keep order. Traffic was also handled efficiently despite the size of the crowd which thronged the streets and sidewalks.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

JESUS READS SCRIPTURE — The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor, hehath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4:18, 19.

THE FOREIGN SERVICE

The strain imposed on the army and navy by the frequent resignation of promising officers to accept more attractive positions in civil life is a matter of general knowledge. The armed defensive establishments of the country are spectacular; and it is obvious to the most casual citizen that to be effective they must be kept in the hands of highly trained personnels. Consequently, attention is periodically called to "the danger to which the nation is exposed" through the resignations of West Point and Annapolis graduates.

The loss to the country through resignations from the foreign service is less obvious to the man in the street; but to those familiar with the difficulties the state department has experienced in building up a trained personnel the recent resignations of six high officials in the foreign service is ominous. A Washington dispatch states that recent resignations have "severely depleted the upper ranks of American diplomacy." A prominent and recurring cause of dissatisfaction in the foreign service is said to be the practice at the capitol of sidetracking promotion lists for other legislation. The last list sent to congress was delayed five months and the one before that an entire year. The effects of this congressional indifference are to rob the promoted officials of just so many months of higher salaries and to weaken their morale by relegating them to a position in the esteem of congress somewhere behind that of a petitioner for private relief.

A trained personnel is just as essential to the proper performance of the state department's important duty of so conducting our foreign relations as to maintain peace, as it is to the war and navy departments in safeguarding the country in the event of war. When congress classified the foreign service and placed it on a more or less permanent basis, a great step forward was taken. The state department then had something in the way of a "career" to offer to young men who joined the service and remained long enough with it to become competent diplomatic and consular officials. A great many already have done so. The ablest of them cannot be expected to stay in the service if congress persists in drawing an invidious comparison between them and the pork barrel. The effect of their resignations will be to deter other ambitious young men from adopting the foreign service as a career.

MONUMENT TO AMERICA

Word comes from Nice that a descendant of Jay Gould has obtained permission from the French government to open a 100,000,000-franc gambling establishment in the vicinity of that pleasure resort. The casino will be ten times as large as that at Monte Carlo, with which it will compete in parting fools from their money.

Gould describes the gaming palace he is about to erect as "a place the Caesars could not have built." Quite likely. The Caesars gambled for worlds, with various success. Gambling over green-baize tables is a modern indoor sport, vastly more profitable to those who own the tables. All along the line from crap shooting to stock gambling, Americans have shown themselves willing learners. They have plenty of money to lose—and for the most part they lose it without a whimper.'

At that, a great many Americans probably would have preferred to read that this scion of one of their most prominent and plutocratic families was about to erect on the outskirts of Nice a new five-and-ten-cent store. Other nations are likely to draw unmannerly comparisons between his palace of chance and the palace of peace that another American erected at The Hague. Ah, well, all sorts and conditions of people are necessary to make a nation—and we are a nation, aren't we?

NEW YORK—A line from Dick Burton's tome, "How to See a Play," which the Macmillan's have just brought out in a new wrapper for two bucks:

PHILOSOPHY DISPUTED

From his Bowery rendezvous, Dan O'Brien, King of the Hoboes, thus expounds the philosophy of his clan:

"While the rest of the world is racing to keep abreast of the mad, modern pace, the hoboes are the only ones with brains enough to sit down and think. They are all humanists. If one of them has a quarter and another hasn't anything, the 'rich' one will give the other a dime."

Daniel and his friends the 'boes may sit and think, but when it comes meal time they're usually pretty lively in getting to their feet, and then they have to go whining to some of the lads in the "mad, modern pace" for their chow.

All the fancy and fluffy trimming in the world won't make a bum anything other than the lowest form of animal life.

FATHER DUFFY'S BATTLE

Father Duffy, war-time "Fighting" chaplain of the 69th regiment, is waging an uphill battle to save his church in West 42nd street, a stone's throw from Times Square, from the encroachment of midtown commerce.

"But," says the exponent of The Church Militant, whose salary is $125 a week, "before I'll resort to begging or harping on money matters from my pulpit, I'll go out and engage in the honorable occupation of street cleaning."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

PITY FOR WOMEN

Mabel Vernon, secretary of the National Woman's Party, says women in the United States are governed by laws which belong to the middle ages. Talking about women's supposed quality with men, Miss Vernon says there are more than a thousand laws that discriminate against women. Well, well, despite all that argument one feels that women do well in America. And women themselves are probably worrying as little as anybody about unfair laws.

YAHUAS

Speaking of women and their part in the world one notices that an expedition of scientists has discovered a tribe of Peruvian Indians called Yahuas. In this tribe the women are stronger than the males and are considered the rulers of the land. All of which is little news and not at all exciting. Their rouge, if you are interested, is made from the red seeds of the achiote tree.

REMEMBERING HEROES

Recently many cities in the United States, especially those where citizens of Polish descent live in large numbers, have been holding celebrations in honor of the Revolutionary war hero, Brigadier General Casimir Pulaski. The United States and Poland may well unite in the pride they feel in a great man. Our lives are inspired and uplifted by reviewing history and coming into contact again with nobility of character and heroic achievement.

ACTIVE MINDED

Adelaide Hamilton, 14-year old girl of Marshall, Iowa, read 312 books in one year. Some will say this is not normal and it is bad for the little girl to use her brain that way. The fact is with most of us the body is exercised too much and the brain too little. There are thousands of other young people—and grown up people, too—who might read five times as many books each year as they do and it wouldn't over-work their brains.

ADVERTISING PORTRAYED AS REQUIRING PROPER DIRECTION

By DR. JULUS KLEIN

Assistant Secretary of Commerce

(Dr. Julius Klein was born in San Jose, Cal., June 27, 1886, and was graduated from the University of California in 1907. He has made investigations in the archives of Latin-America and Europe in history and economics. Dr. Klein became chief of the Latin-American division of the U. S. department of commerce in 1917 and in 1921 was made director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. He was recently appointed assistant secretary of commerce.)

Greatly increased sales of automobiles, cigarettes and household articles reveal the power of well-planned advertising as an indispensible adjunct of commercial progress.

There is an urgent need for wise and vigorous direction of advertising, and the question now confronting the world is whether advertising will take full advantage of the tremendous industrial and financial currents tending to strengthen its position.

The multiplicity of new devices appearing on the market require merchants to apply advertising trade, as markets cannot be created unless products are clearly described.

Consequently the most powerful forces in the modern economic world are working, steadily and rapidly, to promote the expansion of advertising. New and exigent demands are, therefore, being made upon the advertising profession—upon its skill, its resourcefulness, its ethical integrity, its understanding of contemporary life and thought.

The conviction was expressed at Berlin that the advertising profession will respond to new demands with vigor and penetration, and so contribute greatly to the furtherance of material well-being and the raising of the standards of comfort, convenience and human happiness throughout the world.

"Advertising is the key to world prosperity." Under this slogan there has just been held in Berlin, Germany, a mammoth advertising exposition incident to the convention of the International Advertising association.

These two great events have served to focus the attention of the commercial and industrial world upon the present functions of international advertising and its truly amazing progress during recent times.

One of the speakers at Berlin suggested that the earliest man to make use of advertising may have been "a cave dweller who allowed to be visible, from the entrance of his abode, more stone axes than a family of the prehistoric age customarily employed in the pursuit of food"—whether for belligerent or commercial purposes probably would not be clear until the aforesaid handman of the establishment were consulted.

From such simple beginnings as these down to the enormous displays in our newspapers and magazines today, and the infinitely complex and dazzling gyrations of our great electric signs, advertising has made giant strides. It is a truism to say that business today would be paralyzed without it.

Censure is the tax a man pays to the public for being eminent. —Swift

ANOTHER HIT SKIP DRIVER

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Of course most of you have seen the immortal Isadora or read of her. She danced with such abandonment that she earned herself the title of the "Mad Isadora" over several continents. I should like to tell you a little of her life, for it was a fascinating one, only space does not permit.

Few could understand her uncontrolled emotions, but everyone was moved by her wonderful dance creations from the power and terror of March Slav to the delicate charm of the Brahms waltzes. Her wonder will live forever in the minds of those who had the good fortune to see her in her prime.

At the crest of her career, her sister Elizabeth gathered a few gifted girls about her and carried on the teachings of her sister Isadora here in America. In Russia, Isadora adopted more disciples and it is mostly from this original group that we have learned of the principles of her school.

That the body and soul are one, was the fundamental law of all of those who attempted to carry on the work of Isadora. All movement must begin from within and must be unending. In other words, the pupil is taught to feel a movement before she executes it, and even if it is only the lifting of a hand, she must let her whole body respond to that movement.

The "exercises"—though Isadora Duncan loathed the word and never used it in conjunction with her work—consisted of skipping, walking, running, jumping and all the rudimentary things which children do. In building the dances which all her pupils improvised, these simple movements alone were woven together.

One graceful bit of calisthenics originated by Isadora can be done by any one of us at home, and if followed regularly is sure to add grace and agility to the body. This is it: Spring to an astride position, with your feet flat on the floor. Then, pretending that your body is constructed like a rag doll's, relax and lower your upper body until your arms and hands are dangling listlessly to the floor. Now swing far to the left, still relaxed, then describe an arc with your upper body in the air and return to the original relaxed position, with your arms still dangling. Three such movements will be enough for your first effort. As you continue the exercise, you will find that your body grows limber and that any excess avoirdupois will disappear.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—All the gossip concerning prospects of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon's resignation has died down.

There was a good deal of it for awhile.

Occasionally, when a particularly convincing-sounding rumor was in circulation, a perfunctory denial would be put out, but the general impression was that, sooner or later, a show-down would arrive and the Pennsylvania multi-millionaire would quit.

The treasury head had things entirely his own way during the Coolidge regime. He did not concern himself with governmental questions outside his own department, but what he said concerning treasury policies went. There evidently was no argument about it.

This state of affairs did not lap over into the Hoover administration.

There were no signs of a fuss, but the new president's decisions, as given publicity, on issue after issue, were at variance with what everyone, in the least familiar with Secretary Mellon's ideas, knew to a certainty would have been the latter's preference, had the choice been left to him.

In fact, on sveral occasions the secretary, obviously speaking too soon, actually expressed himself one way, and then the president did something else.

Folk who consider themselves well acquainted with Mr. Mellon did not believe this could continue long.

With each succeeding incident, of the sort referred to above, they predicted, "Now he'll resign," and reports that he was on the verge of doing so would fly thick and fast.

After which he would not resign.

"Oh, well," observers would say, the next time he will, for sure."

But one day recently, following an especially thick flock of rumors and another failure by Mr. Mellon to resign, a denial was issued which was not so perfunctory.

On the contrary, it had the ring of verisimilitude.

It did not sound like a denial based merely on the assumption that maybe there would be no resignation. It told exactly how long Mr. Mellon would stay—until the end of President Hoover's term. It was a denial of a kind which, were it to prove unfounded, would be not a little embarrassing to the administration—as indicating that it did not know what it was talking about.

There are denials and denials.

Some of them mean almost nothing; some clearly are intended to be the real thing. This one was of the latter class.

Accompanying this final, convincing denial was a little screed apiece by the three or four newspaper boys who are recognized as "in close touch" with the White House, reproving their less favored brethren for the baseless reports they had so frequently circulated.

'The white haired boys had circulated them, too, but they did not mention that.)

Anyway, the rank outsiders believed, this time, what they were told.

That is, they accepted the latest denial at par.

But did they believe that the earlier denials meant the same thing that the last one did?—that the administration had been sure all along that Mr. Mellon never intended to resign?

Not so anyone could notice it.

They believed that President Hoover and Secretary Mellon finally had been to the mat—and that THEN it came out that Mr. Mellon did not want to resign.

Such things have happened before.

A pretty good man gets to thinking that the boss cannot do without him—that the boss will back up in the well known last analysis—and he tries it and discovers that the boss will not back up—whereupon, if the boss will let him, he backs up himself.

The impression prevails in Washington that Secretary Mellon backed up.

Only the worm of conscience consorts with the owl. Sinners and evil spirits shun the light.—Schiller.

MENU HINT

Lamb Chops
Spaghetti and Peas en Casserole
Celery Cranberry Sauce
Waffles
Syrup or Confectioner's Sugar
Coffee

Are the waffles too substantial a dessert with the menu? Some of us prefer nothing more on the menu when waffles are served. They are no richer than pumpkin or other rich pie, however. Simply eat smaller amounts of the other things.

Today's Receipes

Spaghetti and Peas en Casserole—Arrange alternate layers of prepared spaghetti, canned peas and cracker crumbs in a greased casserole. Pour over one cup canned tomatoes well seasoned, top with grated cheeese. Bake in a hot oven 20 minutes.

Waffles—To one and one-half cups prepared pancake flour add two tablespoons melted butter and two egg yolks beaten with one cup milk. Beat thoroughly. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. The batter should be about the consistency of thick cream.

Suggestions
Meat Cuts

No woman who knows the cuts of meat would buy a porterhouse steak and cook it in the casserole, for she knows a cheaper cut like the chuck or flank will do nicely for this purpose. By the way, the chuck is the first five ribs from the head of the animal. It is medium tough, depending upon the part. Some housewives will tell you this portion is good only for roasting and baking, but the butcher will tell you good steaks suitable for pan broiling are cut from the chuck and it makes excellent pot roasts and stews. The flank is the lower end of the loin, and is tough, so is used chiefly for stews and pot roasts, but the flank steak is best for beefsteak pie, rolled steak and steak a la Flamande.

Home-made Candy

Two cups light brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, one-half cup white corn syrup, one-half cup butter, one cup milk. Cook until it forms soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire and beat in eight marshmallows. Add one cup chopped nut meats and continue beating until it thickens. Pour out on inch deep greased pan.

GOOD AS CANDY COCOANUT KISSES
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipes)

One-half cup evaporated milk, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon almond extract, two cups shredded cocoanut. Combine ingredients in order given. Drop from a teaspoon onto a well greased (not buttered baking pan). Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Remove from pan while hot to prevent crushing. Makes 18 kisses.

APPLE PUFF
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

One cup applesauce, half cup cream, one teaspoon lemon juice, four tablespoons chopped preserved ginger, sugar to taste. Whip the cream stiff, then mix with apple sauce and other ingredients. Pile in sherbet cups and chill. Serve with lady fingers, or slices of sponge or pound cake, if desired, but it's a rich dessert by itself.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Depraved Appetites.

Recently I told a reader who was fond of eating raw starch that she really was suffering from a form of pica, which is a depraved or perverted appetite for inedible substances. I said that pica not infrequently showed a mineral deficiency in the diet.

I am bringing this up again because I should not have limited the deficiency to minerals, for in reality these depraved appetites may also be due to a deficiency of other elements, especially the vitamins. In other words, the diet that is deficient in any way may result in a depraved or perverted appetite.

The craving for drugs and alcohol is a depraved appetite. How much of that may be due to a deficient diet, we don't know; but certainly the sufferers of such appetites should have their diets looked into. You remember not long ago, "Ex-Tank" wrote that he found tomato juice allaying his craving for liquor? Aside from the zest of the stimulating acid taste, tomatoes are very high in vitamins, and they no doubt supplied a need he had for them. Orange and other fruit juices and other vegetable juices would probably act the same. In the modern institutions where they treat drug and alcohol addicts, a nourishing diet, with especial attention to the vitamins, is part of the treatment.

Other effects of deficient diets, besides depraved appetite and lack of appetite, is a lowered tissue resistance. McCarrison, the famous English surgeon and scientist, found that monkeys on a deficient diet would develop dysentery, sometimes with amoeba (an organism which is the known cause of certain dysenteries), and other monkeys on a normal diet, but otherwise under exactly the same conditions, so the same opportunities for infection were present, would not develop dysentery!

It is well known that rickets is a disease due to a vitamin D deficiency, and that scurvy is a disease due to a deficiency of vitamin C, and pellagra, a disease due to lack of vitamin B and, perhaps, complete protein. It will probably be shown that some other obscure diseases are due to lack of either the vitamins or the mineral elements.

Do the possibilities of depraved appetites and lowered resistance to disease, and special diseases brought on by deficient diets, make you realize the importance of a normal diet? Do you know the principles of a normal diet? If you don't, send for our article on the subject. Do it now. (But don't forget to observe the column rules.)

"Is asthma hereditary? Z"

No, asthma is not hereditary, Z. There are different types of asthma, with many different causes. One of the causes that is being unearthed now more and more, through scientific study, is the sensitization of the asthmatic patient to some substance (this condition is known as allergy), and it may be through the diet, or from emanations from animals and even birds, or dust from feather pillows, mattresses, felt, etc. There are tests which will determine which substance is the offending one. You should see your physician for these.

There is also an asthma due to heart disease and other diseases that might affect the mucous membranes lining the lobules of the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Needless to say, the asthma sufferer should live a decidedly hygienic life, so the importance of the diet, exercise, sleep and fresh air must be realized (also the avoidance of bad habits, such as smoking).

We have an article on Colds, Catarrh, Asthma, etc., which you may have. See column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The old, old question is asked in a letter just received. Should a woman continue to live with her husband if he is untrue to her?

No one can answer it but the wife herself. If a husband loves his family, is a good provider, and is kind and companionable—and some men are all these things and still have affairs with other women—the wife may find she would rather excuse his philanderings than break up her home.

She may love him too much to want to give him up, and she may decide that, humiliating and heartbreaking as these affairs are to her, she can excuse them more easily than she could a bad temper, lack of business ability or various other faults.

The wife in this case writes:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am 40 years old and my husband is 42. We have four children, ages 20, 18, 15 and 3. After 21 years of happy married life, I find that my husband has been unfaithful to me for years. The shock and full realization of it all has nearly wrecked my health.

"Went away on a visit, thinking after having been away from him he might promise to do better. He is a good provider, and seems to love his children, but stick pertinaciously to the fact that he will not give up his women acquaintances, nor his gambling.

"Am contemplating suing him for separate maintenance and staying away until he does promise to live right. He tells me that if I do he will sue me for divorce, which I do not want. His actions are humiliating and degrading to the family.

"Will I be doing right by leaving and trying to save him from his awful habits, or shall I go on sacrificing my happiness for the sake of the children? Remember, I am 40 years old, and am taking a chance. Will greatly appreciate your views on this all too common situation.

"MRS. W. R. B."

Your husband would have no grounds for suing you for divorce, my dear Mrs. B. You are the aggrieved party, not he. Won't he straighten up for the sake of the children? They are your strongest appeal. What do you mean, "Remember, I am 40 and taking a chance?" You are two years younger than your husband, and no woman of 40 is old these days. Don't think or act as if you were even middle-aged. You are just in your second youth.

If your husband won't try to live straight for the children's sake sue for separate maintenance, as you suggest.

C. So I told you not to marry until you were of age and you gave the boy friend the "cold shoulder" and now he's going with someone else? Well, I still think my advice good. If his love would not survive this little while, it would have been just too bad for you if you had married him, wouldn't it?

Sorry you are unhappy and jealous of his present girl friend, but, candidly, dear, I don't think it will last—your unhappiness, I mean. I am quite sure another boy will come along soon and you will be happy again.

BONNY GEAN: I cannot see that there would be any harm at all in driving over to the town where the boy friend lives and going to church or Sunday school or a show, if your people know about it and give their consent.

Boys always want to show their love in the way you mention and never seem to mind—or seldom do—that other people are about. And generally speaking, girls are more reticent. Don't worry about the matter. You can show him in many other ways that you think the world of him.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I would like your advice please. I have been going with a fellow I met on my vacation. He says he likes me, yet he tells me to get out and have a good time with other fellows. He has been to see me several times. What would you think about him?

I would think he is not in a position to be serious with a girl, Rose, so he, very thoughtfully, refuses to monopolize her time.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

JEWELS IN THE SUN

Stagg Beetle sat on a stone and mopped his face with his feelers.

"Yucky for you, Mrs. Rose, that your husband and I hadn't started off on the hunt. Seems like an off morning for us, doesn't it, Rose? Boy, here, got hung on my horns in the first place, and then your wife upset things all over again. Oh, well, there's another day coming. All's well that ends well."

"The sun is not over-high yet," remarked Grass-Green, squinting up at the sky and almost rolling on his back to do so. "We can still have the hunt if you, Stagg, and Rose are not too tired. Why don't you two get your breaths and when you are ready the rest of us will be. We'll wait at the foot of the red rose bush."

"Suits me," said Stagg.

"Me, too!" agreed Rose. "However, if you folks don't mind, I'm going to see my wife safe home. See you later!"

The devoted husband helped Mrs. Rose Beetle to her feet and, claw in claw, off the couple started. The sun shone on their coats of gold, green and silver and made them gleam like two bright jewels. Peter watched until they were out of sight.

"Fine looking couple, aren't they?" asked Stagg, looking after them admiringly.

"That they are!" declared Grass-Green. "But there's one thing to be said for all the Beetle family—they know how to dress and to keep up appearances." Grass-Green glanced around at his own sleek green suit with a satisfied smile.

"You'd make good soldiers," said Peter, suddenly. The boy had been studying Stagg.

"Why do you say that?" drawled Grass-Green, as he lazily snapped at a fly who buzzed too close to his head.

BIJOU THEATER TO OPEN WITH TALKING PICTURES SATURDAY

Dorothy Mackaill In "Hard To Get" Will Be Opening Night Feature; No Matinee Saturday; New Seats Are Installed

TALKING motion pictures will make their debut in Xenia Saturday night when the Bijou Theater, Green St., opens with its new sound apparatus featuring the First National picture, "Hard To Get" with Dorothy Mackaill in the leading role, according to J. T. Hibbert, owner and manager.

With the exception of last Saturday and Sunday, when silent pictures were shown, the Bijou has been dark for two weeks during the installation of the new sound equipment and new and comfortable seats.

The introduction of talkies here marks a new era in the process of picture entertainment in Xenia and is expected to be warmly welcomed by Xenia audiences. The theater has been equipped with Western Electric Co., sound equipment, said to be the most successful in use, and the projection machines are housed in a new booth, built outside the auditorium. The old booth projected into the auditorium at the rear, but was reached from an outside entrance.

Practically 500 new seats, of the cushioned style, which should make the theater much more comfortable for patrons, were installed after the sound installation was completed. With completion of the installation, silent pictures at this theater are abandoned entirely, and talkies will be shown every night in the week. The introduction of sound also eliminates the organ, with which silent pictures were accompanied.

New First National pictures have been booked for the opening in order to provide Xenia patrons with pictures they have not seen before, such as films which have been shown in nearby cities recently. Thus "Hard to Get", the Saturday night opening picture, is a brand-new film. Dorothy Mackaill plays the part of a "hard-boiled" manikin in a fashionable New York modiste shop in this picture. Charles Delaney plays opposite the star and in her supporting cast are Jimmy Finlayson, Louise Fazenda, Jack Oakie, Edmund Burns and Clarissa Selwynne. The film was directed by William Beaudine.

"Hard to Get" will be the opening night picture only, the program changing Sunday to "Twin Beds", which will be the attraction both Sunday and Monday. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week "The Great Divide" will be the feature picture followed by "Careless Age" for Friday and Saturday.

During the week of November 10 the program will include: "Young Nowheres", "Fast Life", "The Girl from Woolworths" and "Flight". Attention is called to the fact that the opening night program will be Saturday night only, there being no matinee.

STATE EDUCATION DIRECTOR TO SURVEY CAESARCREEK NEEDS

Regardless of whether the proposed $55,000 bond issue to finance construction of an addition to Caesarcreek Twp. High School carries at the November 5 election, Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, recommended Thursday following an inquiry into the school situation in the district, that the township board of education delay action on the project until completion of a survey to be made by the state educational department at his suggestion.

It is feared by Director Clifton that inasmuch as the township faces eventual centralization of its schools and since its tax duplicate is small, the extra expense entailed by the contemplated erection of an addition to the school would boost the tax rate too high and result in an excessive burden on the tax-payers. It is pointed out that centralization would call for an entirely different type of building from the present high school with enlargement proposed.

The matter has been further complicated by the disclosure of agitation in the eastern part of the township for a transfer to the Jefferson Twp. district, which has a centralized school at Bowersville. Some time ago an application for the transfer was rejected by the County Board of Education and it was soon afterward that the bond issue to enlarge the high school was authorized by the Caesarcreek Twp. school board.

The proposed addition would also include an auditorium which would be of benefit to the community as well as the high school. Voting a bond issue, which would become a lien upon property in the township, would prevent transfer of any property out of the school district, it is declared. As a result residents of the district are also said to look somewhat with disfavor on the project.

Director Clifton came to Greene County Wednesday to look over the school situation in both Caesarcreek and Beavercreek Twp. rural school districts.

The state director did not make a personal visit to Caesarcreek although he did inspect the Beavercreek High School, which will be abandoned if a proposed $155,000 bond issue for the erection of a new consolidated high school in the township is approved at the November election.

Director Clifton declared that the Beavercreek Twp. bond issue meets with the approval of the state department and that since the district has a tax duplicate of $4,500,000 the cost of the project is not prohibitive.

The state department has notified the board that the present school building no longer measures up to present-day requirements and that an up-to-date structure is necessary if the school is to continue to receive high school recognition.

The only districts in the county without centralization or consolidation are Xenia, Beavercreek and Silvercreek Twps. These townships contain forty-one and two-roomed schools.

"KONJOLA ONLY MEDICINE THAT GAVE RELIEF"

Lady Says Her Health Is Greatly Improved After Illness Of Six Months

"I had been ailing for about six months," said Mrs. Marie Holbrook, 824 Elberon Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio. "My stomach was disordered. No matter what I ate, my food did not digest properly. Heart palpitation followed my meals, due to the gas which formed in my stomach. My liver, too, was not in good condition. I was troubled all the time with constipation. I became weak and rundown.

"Konjola was recommended and I decided to try it. I can sincerely indorse this medicine, because it has made me feel better in every way. My appetite is better, indigestion and gas formation have been relieved and I am getting back my lost weight. My liver is in better condition and constipation is a thing of the past. I sleep better at night and feel better every day. Konjola is the only medicine that gave me relief, and I give this new medicine all the credit for my new health."

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give here temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at Gallaher drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. —Adv.

Bowling Scores

The Benrus Watch bowling team, leaders of the Recreation League, extended its advantage to two full games by making a clean sweep of the three-game series with the Buicks Thursday night. The second game was tied at 872 each but the league leaders won the roll-off. Malavazos led the winners with a three-game total of 599. Meulenhard topped the losers with 521.

In a City League match the same evening the Flexmode Shoes won two out of three games from the Hooven and Allison Co. Box score:

PROTESTANT WOMEN MEET IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—More than sixty Protestant women church workers from cities throughout Ohio are in session here today to arrange for group discussions in the third annual Ohio conference of church women, which is to be held here January 21.

Mrs. S. W. Rosenberger, of Steubenville, was selected to arrange for the group discussion on "motion pictures and the drama."

Arrangements for discussion of "the Philippine treasure chest project" will be made by Mrs. Harry Lybarger, of Coshocton, it was decided.

CENTRAL SECONDS MAKE GRID DEBUT

A squad of fifteen boys who make up the combined eighth grade and freshman football team organized ten days ago under the direction of Glen Patterson, assistant Xenia Central High School coach, received its baptism in a practice game with the O. S. and S. O. Home second team on the home gridiron Thursday afternoon.

It was not a regulation game, however, but gave both squads an opportunity to gain experience in scrimmage play.

Although considerably outweighed, the Xenia Central youngsters gave a good account of themselves in the opinion of Patterson, who was particularly outspoken in his praise of five boys, including Earl Jeffries, an eighth grade end, and the following freshman: Carl Smith, center, Burton Baker, fullback; Richard Stiles, end, and Fred Dalton, halfback.

The tackling was uniformly good but additional practice in blocking is needed, Patterson said.

TRANSFER OFFICES TO HOSPITAL WING

Transfer of offices maintained by Drs. B. R. McClellan, R. R. McClellan and T. F. Myler in a building at 7 E. Second St., to a newly-constructed addition to McClellan Hospital on Roger St. will be made Saturday.

The building, owned by Dr. B. R. McClellan, local surgeon and head of McClellan Hospital, has been occupied by him for office purposes since 1898 and has been used for physician offices for nearly 100 years. Disposition of the building which will be vacant following the removal Saturday, has not been determined upon.

Facilities for offices, a clinical laboratory, an X-ray room and treatment rooms are provided in the new wing to the hospital constructed on the south side. The addition contains twelve rooms.

BOOSTERS ENDORSE REGIME OF BURTON

Present administration of affairs of the O. S. and S. O. Home under the regime of Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent, was endorsed in a resolution adopted by the Southwestern Booster Association, a unit of the Spanish-American War Veterans' Association, at its meeting at Memorial Hall, Dayton, last Sunday, it is revealed.

Another gesture of confidence in the present administration of the institution was a dinner given at Cincinnati Thursday night by the two Spanish-American War Veterans' Association posts of that city, at which Col. and Mrs. Burton were guests of honor.

BLAME RACKETEERS FOR CHICAGO BOMB

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Prolonged warfare among beer racketeers was blamed today for a bomb explosion which tore away the porch and blew out the front wall of the Villa Venice roadhouse at Wheeling, a suburb.

Although the place was badly damaged its only occupant, Mrs. Albert Bounher, wife of the owner, was unhurt.

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well — doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

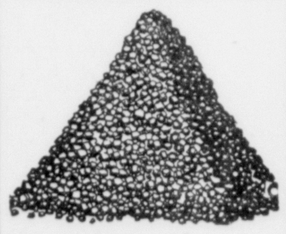

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, loggy and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better . . . I felt better and acted better . . . I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—to relieve it. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, diningcars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MAKING THE BIBLE PRACTICAL

President Hoover says, "There is no other book so various as the Bible, nor one so full of concentrated wisdom. Whether it be of the law, business, morals or that vision which leads the imagination in the creation of constructive enterprises for the happiness of mankind, he who seeks for guidance in any of these things may look inside its covers and find illumination. As a nation we are indebted to the Book of Books for our national ideals and representative institutions. Their preservation rests in adhering to its principles."

The Sunday School presents a program of Bible study and the public service of worship offers practical Bible expositions. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

©1927 D CARL YODER

The several passages of this lesson converge upon universal ground of brotherhood and faith and worship, and these leave no room for division and strife and war, but bind the whole world into unity and common good will and mutual service.

V. 2. "And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains and shall be exalted above the hills; and all the nations shall flow to it." Jehovah's house is the temple and "the mountain of Jehovah's hill" is the temple mountain. The prophet sees the time when all nations shall come to Jerusalem to learn the true religion.

V. 4. "And he will judge between the nations and will decide concerning many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." This prophecy foreshadows world justice and law and a court to administer it; the kingdom of God on earth is the fulfillment of this idealistic thought—a day when all will have such universal sympathies as to recognize the broader ties of common blood, one brotherhood.

V. 22. "And Paul stood in the midst of the Areopagus, and said, ye men of Athens, in all things, I perceive that ye are very religious.' Paul appealed to the religious nature of the Greeks and thus put himself in sympathy with his audience that he might lead them to higher ground.

V. 23. "For as I passed along, and observed the objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription 'To an unknown God' What therefore ye worship in ignorance, this I set forth unto you." By their own engraved confession, they needed the light of God's truth.

V. 24. "The God who made the world and all things therein, He being Lord of Heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands." Greek religion was pantheistic at its root and denied creation; Paul exposed this error by separating God from his creation and exalting Him above it.

V. 25. "Neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth life, and breath and all things." Men can give nothing to God except what God has first given to men, though he is pleased with men's offerings as a proof of their love.

Vs. 26, 27. "And he made of one every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, having determined their appointed seasons, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek God, if happily they might seek after him, though he is not far from each one of us." The cherished beliefs of these Greeks was that men were of different origins and races and ranks and in their hearts they were thankful they were not like others; this error was broken down with the fact of the universal fatherhood and providence of God. The purpose of creation was that all men might become searchers of God who is so near that there is no excuse of failure in finding him.

V. 21. "Jesus said unto her, woman, believe me, the hour cometh when neither in this mountain, not in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father. The true worship of God does not lie in externals, in particular places, or in particular forms or by special ceremonies; these may be aids to worship, but it is of first importance to worship God "in spirit and in truth."

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

©1927 D CARL YODER

1. What are some of the vital truths in heathen religions? What vital truth in the religion at Athens?
2. What is the secret of world peace?
3. Why should our government join the World Court?
4. Why should the United States not enter the League of Nations?
5. What are the practical steps our nation should take to promote world peace?
6. What part ought the churches take in bringing the world reign of peace nearer?

Clericus says, "The world has tried to effect world peace by means of war long enough; peace through mutual understanding, not through rivalry, competition and strife, is the Christian ideal. We must at least reduce the world to a basis of law and conduct its international relations according to the Christian principles of justice and righteousness."

Lesson Prayer. "We would exalt thee, O God, and so own Thee as our Father that we would naturally think of all men as our brothers. We would seek peace as a program for the family of God and we would pursue it with all our hearts.

BOOK REVIEW

"Experimentation and Measurement in Religious Education," by Watson, Association Press, is designed primarily for use in teacher training classes but would be of interest to all teachers of religion. It is essentially practical and readable.

The American Tract Society will distribute 5,000,000 tracts this year to combat the rising tide of atheism.

Plans are being formulated for a celebration April 13, 1930 of the principle of religious freedom as enunciated by Thomas Jefferson who was born that day. The commemoration will be known as "Religious Freedom Day," and it is hoped to make it a prominent national event.

Three priests of the Order of White Fathers, African Catholic missionaries have established a novitiate in Cleveland, Ohio. This foundation is said to be the first of this order in the United States.

The winner of the religious novel contest conducted by the Christian Herald and the Doubleday-Doran Company, has just been announced. The award of $2500 for the novel best interpreting the spirit of Christianity to the modern world, goes to Eli Millen of New York, whose novel "Bethel" was adjudged the best out of the hundreds submitted.

Professor Wilbur C. Thoburn of Lucknow Christian College, now studying in Chicago University is one of three members of the fourth generation of the Thoburn family serving the Methodist Church in India.

Dr. Benjamin S. Winchester, president of the Hymn Society, announces that the society's award of $100 for the best new missionary hymn has been won by Professor Henry Hallam Tweedy of the Yale Divinity School. His words, "Eternal God, Whose Power Upholds" was adjudged the best of more than 100 hymns submitted, from all over the world. A prize is now bing offered for a new tune for Professor Tweedy's hymn.

The Radio Parish church with headquarters in Portland, Maine, now has an estimated audience of 100,000. The church is organized as a non-denominational body with a full time pastor who devotes his entire time to his radio flock within reach. Lighthouse-keepers, woodsmen and farmers in isolated districts of Canada, Nova Scotia and northern New England are among the listeners.

Of what value are rewards in religious education?

One aim in religious education is to have pupils find satisfaction in the work itself and in the development of greater capacity and skill. The satisfaction should be intrinsic, in the work itself, and not in some extrinsic reward, as is seen in the works of great artists, scientists, and poets. Rewards and recognitions are valuable only to the degree in which they increase interest in the work itself and center attention on worth while objectives. They are a menace when they become ends in themselves. Should rewards be given they should have character value as good books or pictures.

Recognitions are meritorious in acknowledging work done rather than reward for doing it. They may be fittingly given for consistent effort and real improvement such as the giving of certificates with honor to all who complete the study and enterprise of the class. Rewards such as pins and badges are becoming out of date, as better psychology and pedagogy is being taught and religious leaders adopt the improved standards of religious education.

CHEERFULNESS

When Mr. Rockefeller, aged 88, was enroute to his winter home in Florida his train stopped for fifteen minutes at Savannah. Deferential reporters asked the beaming old man for a statement.

"This," said he, "is a copy of my daily prayer which I read at least once daily."

Reporters read: "Heavenly Father we thank Thee for the glad and wholesome contagion of cheerfulness. If frowns and distempers are contagious, we thank Thee that smiles are not less so. By the strange law of increase, gladness begets gladness. Remembering then that no frown ever made a heart glad, help us to go forth to meet the day with high hope and smiling face; and even though it has not been eas yto smile let us rejoice if so we have been able to add to the sum of human happiness and make burdens lighter."

THE EYES OF JESUS

I found the Man talking quietly with village folk.....and each one's weal and woe lay in His eyes.

I found the Man watching little children play. They'd hedged Him in a charmed circle; a flower wreathed crown was on His brow. His eyes were a jeweled May-dawn.

I found the Man weeping by His friend's grave side.....I wonder what he who had been in the shadow saw in his Friend's eyes.

I found the Man at the temple door. 'Twas not the whips that drove the merchants forth. The eyes of the Man were terrible with flame, terrible with tears.

I found the Man climbing his last hill. 'Twas evening and the world was growing dark. But in His eyes was dawn-light's glory from beyond the Hill.

Well, comrades of the Roads, this world needs nothing quite so much as His dream.—H. B. Williams.

COHAN TO PRODUCE PLAY BY CLERIC

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 1. — "New York" a play written by the Rev. Charles Root, curate of St. Joseph's Church here, will be produced in Los Angeles beginning Thanksgiving Day as a George M. Cohan production, according to word received by Rev. Root today.

The play, which was presented in Cleveland last year to raise parish funds, attracted the attention of theatrical managers there who recommended it to Cohan.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

"Believe it or not," Lewis Stone, the veteran motion picture actor, will be fifty years of age next November 15. He doesn't look it, but the fact remains that he was born half a century ago in Worcester, Mass.

Stone went on the stage fairly early and since changing his affects to the screen, has been one of the pillars of the profession. He is said to be one of the two men whom it is incredible to imagine as playing a slapstick part in a comedy. The other is Clive Brook—they're the two most dignified men in the films.

Stone has appeared in "Cytheria", "Lost World", "Fine Clothes", "Private Life of Helen of Troy", "Prisoner of Zenda", "Woman of Affairs", "Trial of Mary Dugan", "Scaramouche" and many other important films, but his best work is said to have been done as Pahlen in "The Patriot".

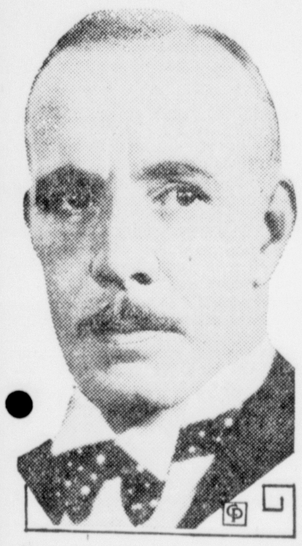

* * *

He is one of the few actors equally popular with both men and women movie goers. He is not a very tall man, although he gives the appearance of height. Five feet, ten and one-half inches is his height. He weighs 165 pounds and likes to wear quiet clothes. He has hazel eyes and gray hair, his mustache is gray and always trimmed the same. Recently he divorced his second wife and is said to be planning another marriage. He has two grown daughters by his first marriage, who are starting stage work.

* * *

Wonder if Lew Fonseca, the baseball player, is still spending his winters on the stage? Fonseca won the American League batting championship last season by his excellent stick work with the Cleveland Indians. He used to warble right merrily on various and sundry vaudeville circuits during the baseball off-months. But maybe a man who can tap a baseball at a .400 clip doesn't have to spend his winters on the two-a-day. However, a little fame little that in the line of sport endeavor, is open Sesame to the footlights. Witness "Mule" Haas the Philadelphia Athletic centerfielder who broke up the World Series with that vicious home run and his teammate Mickey Cochrane, the Mack's star catcher. There are two Thespians for you. Those two babies are trying to out-do John Barrymore with a vaudeville skit this winter. Stifle a yawn.

* * *

You wouldn't believe it, would you, that Lewis Stone, above, one of the film's most dignified, is preparing to celebrate his fiftieth birthday? Well, he is. November 15 is the date.

COTTON STOCKINGS

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, is stunned with the death of her widow mother, the town seamstress of Rendale, Pa. Penniless, and without any knowledge of the world, she scarcely knows where to turn when Kenessa Du Barry, burlesque actress, returns to visit her mother and offers her two dresses and fifteen dollars to go to Philadelphia in search of a job. Kenessa sends Rosalie to Mother Murphy's boarding house. She meets Tim O'Hara, 14, newsie on the corner, who adores her and calls her "Queen."

Rosalie finds a job at the hosiery counter of Boggs and Clarke store. The morning she goes to work she discovers a "run" in her only pair of silk stockings and is compelled to wear her old school cotton ones. Ann Schultz, head salesgirl in hosiery, is amazed at tne old-fashioned hose, and makes fun of them. Rosalie, heartsick, is struck with an idea that both shames and frightens her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XI

By the middle of the afternoon Rosalie had firmly convinced herself that taking a pair of the stockings, just until she could pay for them Saturday, was only "borrowing."

It was the idea of how to do this, and fear that someone would see her, that drove a sick fear through her heart. One minute she was cold, the next minute hot, flushed, and almost ready to believe Ann suspected what she was thinking about. She imagined Ann was eyeing her slyly, and that she was not acting naturally.

A little after 4 o'clock Ann left the counter.

"I'm gonna renew the shellac on my maidenly countenance, angel face," she told her. "Think you can run the show while I'm gone?"

"I'll do my best." Rosalie tried to smile naturally and turned cold all over.

There was no one at the counter. With an elaborate show of straightening the stock, and looking sharply from the corner of her eye, Rosalie pushed a box of the stockings to the floor.

Then, with a pretended rueful expression for her accident she stopped down and picked all but one pair from the floor. When she got up a gray-haired lady in a little old-fashioned hat and dress was standing by the counter.

"What can I do for you?" Rosalie again tried to smile naturally and in a professional manner.

The old lady looked rather at a loss.

"Well, dearie, I don't just know. It's my granddaughter's birthday tomorrow and I wanted to get her somethin' right nice. She wears these kind of pretty stockings, and, maybe, you can pick a pair for me. Something about a dollar."

Dollar hosiery was rare at the Boggs and Clarke store and Rosalie had quite a time unearthing a pair from stock. But, she selected what she considered the most expensive looking shade and held them under the light.

"My, them are pretty," the old gray head shook in admiration. "In my day I never set eyes on a pair."

As Rosalie put them in the bag she watched her admiringly:

"My, you girls these days are just that smart! What I'd a done in a noisy, big city like this when I was a girl! Things has changed so!"

"This is the first day I ever worked," Rosalie confided. "I was never in a city in my life until day before yesterday."

"Sakes alive! And you ain't scared! Got people here, I spose?"

"Nobody," Rosalie said it rather proudly.

"Dear, me!" The aged woman wagged her head in perplexity. "I don't know what the world's comin' to. My granddaughter works, too. In a decoratin' shop. Calls it a career."

"Well, believe me, angel face, you work fast!"

"I'm working because I have to," Rosalie felt a little defense of herself was in order.

"Well, look sharp, dear! It's a bad world. Full of handsome men with evil hearts—and women, too. God bless you and keep you from the ways of evil."

The last was said like a benediction. It was almost like her mother had said it. Rosalie again felt a sharp sickening pain in her heart for what she was about to do. But the temptation to escape from more of the jibes and glances of the silken-shod girls around her drove her to desperation.

She stooped down and slipped the hose down the front of her dress. For a little while she poked among the boxes as though she were rearranging them. How could she ever stand up and face the world?

Suppose the stockings showed in her waist? Utter terror seized her, and she would have taken them out had she not just then heard a pleasant male voice above the counter.

"What do you think you are, young lady, an ostrich?"

Gasping with fear Rosalie stood up and the store seemed to whirl around and around. It couldn't be her voice answering the tall, dark-haired stranger who smiled at her and showed a row of flashing white teeth.

"I—I was fixing the boxes."

The young man laughed in such a natural friendly manner that Rosalie was reassured. He hadn't seen her. She glanced down cautiously at her dress front and convinced herself that the hose did not show through. But they were like a lump of lead lying on her heart.

"What can I do for you?" she asked him in the way she had heard Ann Schultz addressing people all day.

He placed a hand on his hip and put a finger coyly in the corner of his mouth.

"Oh, dearie me. I don't just know. Perhaps a nice red pair—"

Rosalie dimpled despite her heavy heart and his eyes opened wide.

"Dimples! Well, I've been taking a look at you every chance I got today. But I didn't know you had dimples, besides."

"Besides what?" Rosalie looked prim.

"The face of a Helen of Troy and the chassis of a Venus de Milo."

"You, you work in the store, then?"

"Oh, yes, quite—" he grinned at her. "I'm not a rank outsider come to force my way into your acquaintance. We are, so to speak, formally introduced. My name is Roy. I am in the business office. And your name?"

"Rosalie."

She looked at him shyly and saw that his hair was straight and very dark brown and his eyes dark gray and full of laughter. He was tall, and, yes, quite the most dashing and heroic young man she had ever had conversation with.

He stood looking at her, an amused light playing in his mischevious eyes.

"I suppose no young blade has taken it upon himself today to tell you that you are quite the prettiest damsel in the store."

Again she blushed and dimpled, just as Ann came back and saw Roy lean toward her and smile.

He nodded to Ann and walked away.

"Well!" Ann put her hands on her hips and shook her yellow head. "Believe me, angel face, you work fast. But so does he, for that matter."

"I don't," Rosalie said, haughtily, "even know who the young man is."

"Only Roy Clarke Andrews, heir to all the Clarke millions and nephew of the owner of this joint," Ann informed her, equally loftily.

Rosalie had almost forgotten the stockings in her dress. But the rest of the afternoon was a nightmare.

When 5:30 came she almost flew to the time clock to check out and get away from the store. She felt as though a monster were pursuing her.

PARTITION SOUGHT; DIVORCE IS ASKED; OTHER COURT NEWS

Partition of three tracts of real estate situated in Bath Twp., is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Stella Bryan, R. F. D., No. 3, Urbana, daughter and one of the heirs of the late Sarah Harner, who died December 16, 1924. The plaintiff claims to own a one-fourteenth interest in the land.

Defendants in the action, also heirs of the decedent, are: Nettie M. Harner, patient at the Dayton State Hospital; Evelyn Duncan, R. F. D. No. 3, Osborn; Amy Harper, R. F. D. No. 4, Dalton, O.; Ella Black, 882 5th St., Massillon, O.; Cora Stauffer, R. F. D. No. 7, Xenia; Dorothy Roby, Fairfield; Esther Grisson, Osborn; Bernice Graham, Fairfield; Mildred Norris, Osborn; George Harner, Osborn; and O. B. Kauffman, as guardian of Amos Harner, Osborn. Morris D. Rice, Osborn attorney, represents the plaintiff.

DIVORCE ASKED

Complaining that her husband not only associates with other women but also boasts of it to her, Bertha Wheelen has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Earl Wheelen on grounds of extreme cruelty. They were married January 5, 1910 and have one child, Howard, 18. The plaintiff seeks to be decreed alimony and asks that the defendant be enjoined from disposing of their property.

SEEK PARTITION

Lura E. Dunkel, R. F. D. No. 8, Springfield, is plaintiff in a suit on file in Common Pleas Court seeking partition of real estate located in Fairfield village. According to the petition the plaintiff is an heir of John P. Schroeder, who died February 5, 1912, intestate, and owns a one-third interest in the premises.

Most of the defendants in the suit are also heirs. They are: Carl F. Schroeder and Florence Schroeder, his wife; Elizabeth Esterline and James F. Esterline, her husband; J. F. Esterline, as administrator of the estate of Anna Schroeder, deceased, widow of John P. Schroeder; and Aaron H. Dunkel, husband of the plaintiff. C. A. Olinger is attorney for the plaintiff.

SETTLE CASE

The suit of The Sherwin-Williams Co. against William N. Linton and others has been settled and ordered dismissed in Common Pleas Court.

MISS GILLESPIE IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Miss Catherine Gillespie passed away at her home at 202 Cincinnati Ave., at 6:15 o'clock Thursday evening following a stroke of paralysis. She had been in ill health for the last year and a half and was stricken with paralysis last August.

Miss Gillespie was the daughter of the late James and Mary Dugan Gillespie and was born in New York City but came to this city when a small child and spent almost all her life here.

She is survived by one sister, Miss Brigid Gillespie of Xenia, a brother James, of Springfield and a niece, Miss Augusta Galloway of Xenia.

She was a member of St. Brigid's Church. Funeral services will be held at the church at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning. Burial will be made in the Catholic Cemetery.

No wonder this OHIO Mother is proud

"MY little son, Bobby, was troubled a lot with constipation," says Mrs. Rose Temple, 5883 Pearl Road, Cleveland. "He got very weak, run-down and underweight. I gave him California Fig Syrup; and in just a little while he was eating heartily and gaining. Now I'm proud as can be; he's so robust, bright and active."

Temporary relief should be far from the first consideration when a child shows by bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, or a listless, weak condition, that he's constipated. Of course, the child's system needs a prompt cleansing. But the youngster's bowels also need toning and strengthening.

That's where California Fig Syrup does its best work. It helps strengthen the bowel muscles; gives tone to a weak stomach. That's why faulty digestion improves with its use; bowel movements become regular and remain so.

Every child loves its flavor; its cleansing action is prompt but gentle. A pure vegetable product; no danger of causing the laxative habit. It has full medical endorsement. There are many imitations; but the word California marks the genuine.
